Johnson Takes Weekend Break From Viet Nam Consultations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The armed services were under orders today to study a possible draft increase, while President Johnson took a weekend break in the intensive consultations on Viet Nam.

Although Johnson left Washington Friday evening for Camp David, the presidential retreat in the nearby Maryland mountains, press secretary Bill D. Moyers said the President would keep in close touch with his advisers, including Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and McGeorge Bundy, special assistant on national security matters.

The President and Mrs. Johnson had as their weekend guests the ambassador designate to the United Nations, Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg, and Mrs. Goldberg.

Weekend Studies
The last of three days of conferences on the Southeast Asia fighting was devoted in part Friday to possible need to increase draft quotas, Moyers said, and the President asked the military service chiefs to make special studies during the weekend on the additional strength each of the forces may need in South Viet Nam.

The Pentagon issued a draft call Friday for 17,000 men — the same numerical range that has prevailed in recent months.

Some indication of the seriousness with which military commanders view the manpower situation in Viet Nam came Friday night in a speech by Gen. Harold K. Johnson, chief of staff of the Army, in Columbus, Ga.

Johnson, who participated in White House discussions on Viet Nam, told an American Legion state convention "the Viet Cong have been operating with greater frequency in battalion and regimental formations."

In contrast with the guerrilla tactics of the past, he said, "they have been willing to engage in sustained combat operations against South Vietnamese units and to hold for periods of time terrain features such as district capitals."

Despite bombing of supply routes, he said, enough ammunition has been sent into South Viet Nam since January to supply 20,000 Communist soldiers.

39 Lives Are Spared in Flaming Plane Crash

Pilot Cited For Doing 'Terrific Job'

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — A skillful Allegheny Airlines pilot threaded his burning two-engine plane through a grove of pine trees and made a wheels-up belly-landing in a narrow clearing Friday, saving the lives of 36 passengers and three other crew members aboard.

Both wings were sheared off as the plane screeched to a halt in the wooded area. Its passengers scrambled out through windows and emergency doors.

A slow-burning, but fierce fire left only a black skeleton of what was a Convair 440.

The pilot, Allen Lauber, 36, of Philadelphia, was pinned in his seat and suffered a broken leg, burns and bruises.

15-Year Veteran

Lauber is a 15-year veteran of commercial plane flying.

Duane Callahan, manager of the Williamsport - Lycoming County Airport, from where the plane had taken off just minutes before, credited Lauber with a "terrific job" of maneuvering the plane into the narrow clearing.

Mrs. George H. Parke Jr., who lives nearby, said the plane, smoke pouring from one engine, barely missed a barn, struck a utility pole near a rural church and ripped through the wooded area before coming to rest in the grove.

Donald Brody, 16, of South Orange, N.J., said the copilot, James McClure, of Jackson,

Lightning, Winds Halt Valley Power

Friday night's severe electrical storm, with wind gusts up to 54 m.p.h., was responsible for extensive damage to power lines and transformers in the Fox Valley area.

Power was interrupted for periods of 40 minutes to one and one-half hours in Appleton, Neenah, Clintonville, Bonduel, Cecil and Shawano, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

Telephone service was interrupted in Ogdensburg.

The series of storms was scattered throughout the north-central part of the state, with hail, wind and lightning causing damage to wires and trees and several tornadoes being reported.

The power company received about 200 calls after the height of the storm, all involving power interruptions. Twelve pole-top transformers were burned out by the lightning, while three primary wires were downed in Appleton and one in 330 miles northeast of Shawano.

The interruptions were caused by lightning damage to transformers shortly before 9 p.m.

The Appleton Fire Department made 10 runs during the storm, mostly to control blazes caused by sparking wires which ignited in trees. Firemen were called after lightning hit an electric sign at the residence of Hugo Sturm, 519 S. Bounds St., at 9:25 p.m. The lightning followed a wire into the house and blew a fuse, but no fire was reported.

A small fire was started at the residence of Eugene Wurzer, 1223 N. State St., when wires shorted and burned in a fuse box and in a conduit on the service line to the house.

The Appleton Police Department made 12 runs due to the storm, mostly involving streets barricaded by fallen branches.

Lightning struck the home of Bill Brennan, Oregon Street Road, south of Oshkosh, at 9 p.m., starting a fire that was noticed two and a half hours later.

Fire Chief Hebert Potratz of the Town of Nekimi in Winnebago County said two bedrooms received considerable damage and the fire went up the walls and into the attic. There also

Old Torpedo Dredged Into Fishing Nets and Explodes; 8 Men Dead

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — An old torpedo, accidentally dredged from the ocean bottom by a fishing net, demolished the trawler Snoopy in a blast 45 miles north of Portsmouth's Banks Friday night.

Eight crewmen died. Thus the Outer Banks, legendary scene of many a shipwreck and the Atlantic graveyard of allied shipping in World War II, claimed still more lives — 20 years after the war's end.

Today, sharks nosed about the Snoopy's shattered wreckage as Coast Guard and fishing boats circled the area in faint hope of finding more than the known four survivors, who were being brought to Norfolk, Va.

Those picked up Friday night were all in extremely critical condition.

Legislative Oversight Delays New State Budget Enactment

Signatures of Lucey and Huber Fail to Appear on Document

MADISON (AP) — An oversight by the presiding officers of the state Senate and Assembly has forced an unexpected delay in the enactment of an $824.2 million budget bill combined with provisions to raise $73.7 million in new taxes.

Gov. Warren P. Knowles told a news conference Friday he had been ready to sign immediately the compromise proposal approved by the political divided Legislature after six months of feuding.

But a legislative resolution authorizing him to sign a typed copy instead of the usual printed version of the bill did not have the signatures of the presiding officers of the houses, Lt. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and Assembly Speaker Robert Huber, D-West Allis.

To Be Signed Tuesday
"Under these circumstances," Knowles said, "I am not legally authorized to sign the bill at this time." He said he would put his name to it Tuesday.

After making the announcement of the postponement in signing the budget - tax bill, Knowles said he would address a joint session of the legislature at 10 a.m. Tuesday. The Republican chief executive said he intended to ask the lawmakers to place a priority on bills involving education, conservation, water pollution and highway safety during the waning days of the session.

The delay in enacting the budget - tax measure will not have any effect on revenue estimates for the biennium.

Ordinarily, a bill is sent to the governor in printed form, but this process takes about 10 days. The resolution had been intended to speed the proposal into law.

"Responsible Solution"
Knowles, who called the bill a "responsible solution to meeting the state's needs," said he would not be able to sign the compromise until Tuesday because he plans to attend the national governor's conference this weekend in Minneapolis.

He added that he intended to make an item veto in the budget provisions of the bill, striking a section that would have abolished the Wisconsin Surplus Property Commission and shifted its duties to the State Building Commission.

The Surplus Property agency was created in 1959 when the federal government abandoned Bong Air Force Base in Racine and Kenosha counties. Knowles said he did not think the land receipt contracts signed by the agency would be valid if the commission were discontinued. He added that he would ask the attorney general for an opinion.

"Critical" Legislation
The governor said his Tuesday address to the lawmakers was aimed at stirring action on the "critical" legislation remaining before them.

The progress of this legislature, which convened Jan. 13, would be called "nominal and nil," Knowles said.

But if some of the problems can be resolved in the closing days of the session, he said, "it could be a fruitful session with many significant developments."

Senate Approves Bill Making Assassinating President U.S. Crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional action is almost complete on a bill to make the assassination of the president a federal crime.

This was one of the key recommendations of the commission that investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The Senate approved the measure by voice vote Friday.

Neither Side Won on Taxes, Fish Claims

EAU CLAIRE (AP) — Neither party got everything it wished in the compromise tax - budget bill which awaits Gov. Warren P. Knowles' signature, state Republican chairman Ody J. Fish said Friday.

Fish, who presided at the opening of a two-day session of the state GOP executive committee, said his party came out of the fiscal battle "stronger than the Democrats" and that the Republican governor had increased his strength in the state because of his "outstanding leadership in doing everything possible to bring the state's tax problem to the attention of the citizens."

Fish said the bill, enacted Thursday, was a "direct result of the divided government in Madison."

"In such a case you have to assume the bill won't meet the highest hopes of either party," he said. "However, the paramount issue was that passage of a tax bill was necessary and, as far as the political implications are concerned, they were secondary. What the effect will be on the campaign will have to be assessed at some future time."

Communists May Decide Outcome Of Greek Struggle

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — A small but well-organized pro-Communist party may decide the outcome of ousted Premier George Papandreu's struggle to regain power.

The United Democratic left — EDA — has been active in the demonstrations staged on Papandreu's behalf since King Constantine fired the 7-year-old leader in a power showdown July 15.

The EDA, widely acknowledged as the front for the outlawed Greek Communist party, offered its parliamentary vote to Papandreu in November 1963 when he was seeking a confidence vote for a majority government. Papandreu rejected EDA help then, and in subsequent national elections he won 171 seats in the 300 - member single - chamber Parliament — enough for his Center Union party to govern alone.

Now Papandreu's party has split, with 20 members siding with the 25-year-old king and joining the new government of Premier George Athanasiadis Novas. At least 10 other members are counted as doubtful.

The crisis has cost Papandreu his majority in Parliament. Political experts believe he may now turn to the EDA for its 22 votes.

Wisconsin Tax Boost Becomes Effective Oct. 1

Increase Will Be Retroactive to Beginning of 1965

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The first effects of the newly-boosted state income tax rates will be felt by about 1,250,000 Wisconsin residents subject to state income tax withholding on wages and salaries after Oct. 1.

That will be the effective date for the revision of the income tax tables in compliance with the higher personal income tax levies made effective as a result of the compromise tax bill enacted by the Legislature late in the week.

James R. Morgan, state commissioner of taxation, said his agency will order the withholding table revision on that date, and that the revision will include not only the 1965 rate boosts, but will anticipate the 1966 rate increases also approved in the new law.

Retroactive Rates
The new rates for this year will be retroactive to Jan. 1.

Because the Legislature delayed so long the enactment of the rate changes, however, for most individual taxpayers the additional deductions from earnings from Oct. 1 through the end of this year won't be sufficient to cover the accrued liability for the year.

As a result, there will be due from many of them cash payments for the difference at the regular income tax due date next April 15, or in the alternative, many taxpayers will find the state cash refunds they might otherwise have expected reduced or cancelled out altogether.

Hundreds of Viet Cong Die

Marines Repel One Attack; B57s Pound Major Encampments

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marines repelled a Viet Cong attack six miles west of Chu Lai today, killing four guerrillas, a U. S. military spokesman said.

The spokesman said the Marines suffered no casualties.

Chu Lai is about 340 miles northeast of Saigon.

The spokesman reported only light scattered action in the ground war but continued heavy air strikes against Viet Cong concentrations in South Viet Nam.

An estimated 295 Viet Cong were reported killed by U.S. Air Force and Vietnamese aircraft. However, there was no confirmation by body count.

B57s Strike
Four B57s were said to have pounded two Viet Cong encampments and fortifications some 10 miles east of Quang Ngai city, in 330 miles northeast of Saigon.

An estimated 110 Viet Cong were killed in the strike, the spokesman said.

'Quiet, Lonely' Nurse Held in Priest's Death

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A neat, quiet and apparently friendly nurse, who police said was fired from her last job because of "emotional instability," is being held in the mystery death of a young priest.

Mrs. Bressie, 55, an unemployed nurse and divorcee, had made several recent telephone calls in an attempt to set up an audience with the cardinal.

Mrs. Bressie, auburn-haired and attractive, was booked Friday on suspicion of murder. Investigators said she gave a statement admitting the shooting, but its contents were not made public.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Edward V. Wade said he heard a thump Friday and rushed into a second-floor conference room. He found the Rev. John Thom, 32, dying on the floor just outside.

The Monsignor administered last rites and the priest was taken to an emergency hospital. He was dead of head and chest wounds.

Father Thom was working as the cardinal's secretary.

Derringer Pistol

Msgr. Wade said he saw Mrs. Bressie place a derringer pistol on a table when he first entered the conference room.

A dozen police cars raced to the chancery, and Mrs. Bressie was taken into custody.

Mrs. Bressie lived in a three-room cottage in the Atwater district near Glendale. Police quoted a neighbor as saying she appeared to have no friends.

Mrs. Bressie had worked at several hospitals, officers said, and lost her most recent job four months ago. The officers said they were told that she was fired because of "emotional instability."

Late Jewish Seer Sought Confirmation in Other Self

Martin Buber Preached Real Existence Found Only in Another

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Day by day and moment by moment, a person goes through life looking uncertainly to the eyes of others, watching for that flicker of "yes" which confirms the essence of his own being.

"It is from one man to another that the heavenly bread of self-being is passed," said Martin Buber. "Man can become whole not in virtue of a relation to himself, but only in virtue of a relation to another self."

This basic concept — that a person finds real existence only in conjunction with another — forms a keynote of the teaching of this great Jewish seer, whose work today seasons the religious thought of the world.

Its influence, sweeping across traditional boundaries and affecting Christians as much or even more than his own Judaism, is being especially marked these days in the wake of his death last month in Israel.

God-Possessed

"He was, as one could say, 'God-possessed,'" the renowned Protestant theologian, Paul Tillich, told an interfaith memorial gathering last week.

More than 3,000 people — nuns, rabbis, priests, ministers and others, including psychiatrists whose field has felt Buber's impact — overflowed Manhattan's Park Avenue Synagogue for the service, sponsored by American Friends of Hebrew University.

"This spiritual reality which was in the man Martin Buber," said Dr. Tillich, "will last for a long time in future history and open for man that which is above history."

In an era of mass-organized technology, which tends to classify people on an impersonal basis of skills as mere utilitarian instruments, Buber insisted that genuine life arises only through deep interpersonal relationships.

Existence Shared

"All real life is a meeting," Buber said, and he maintained it can only happen "one by one," one person with another, not en masse. "Existence cannot be possessed, but only shared in," he said. "Do not withhold yourself."

So pervasive was Buber's message, even beyond the academic halls, that popular versions of it have entered everyday conversation, particularly his contrast between vitalizing "I-thou" relationships and desolating "I-it" relationships.

"The I exists only in relation to the thou," he said, giving a new terminology to togetherness. The melancholy of the age, he adds, is that men tend to deal with each other as "its," as usable objects or things.

He insisted that the individual "I" discovers authentic being only through attentive response — agreeing or disagreeing — to the "thou" of others, the resultant inter-personal dialogue reflecting the "eternal thou" of God.

Divine reality, he said, exists

"between" persons. "The true meaning of love of one's neighbor is not that it is a command from God which we are to fulfill, but that through it and in it we meet God."

Ironically, Buber's majestic white beard and kindly, penetrating eyes made him look like old-fashioned images of a grandfather-type. "God," he strongly maintained that neither man's mind nor art could portray divinity.

He contended that man meets God, not in deductions or abstractions, but in ordinary activities and relationships, in present moments, places and persons, in embracing the world, not turning away from it.

"If you hallow this life, you meet the living God," he said. "The all-day of redemption grows only out of the redemption of the every day."

Of course, God is "the wholly other," he said, but He also is "nearer to me than my I."

Become Life

To Buber, real religion meant overcoming religion as a special, isolated domain, with its separate rules and rites apart from life, and instead moving always to "become life" itself.

"It is a greater thing," he said, "if the streets of a man's native town are as bright to him as the paths of heaven. For it is here, where we stand, that he should try to make shine the life of the hidden divine life."

As Buber saw it, evil is not opposite from good, to be suppressed, but a truncated part of it which in detachment becomes evil, but whose energy if directed by the integral whole becomes capable of "great love and great service."

He considered the crisis of modern man as his "loss of community" in a world in which his works — "the tyranny of the exuberantly growing it" — have become his master. He deplored both rank individualism and collectivism.

Single Views

"Individualism sees man only in relation to himself, but collectivism does not see man at all, it sees only 'society'."

He said that while many people realize they need God, they do not realize that God needs them.

"You need God, in order to be, and God needs you, for the very meaning of your life which belongs to Him."

Asked once about life beyond death, he said:

"We cannot and should not imagine life after death merely as a going on in time. I don't even imagine a going on in time, but I am certain of entering eternity. And though I cannot imagine it, I know I shall enter it, and this means that one can be more certain of God's existence than his own existence."

Stores Benefit From Increased Consumption

Retail Chains Show 21 Per Cent Up From First 6 Months of '64

By SAM DAWSON
Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The American consumer is bringing a golden flood of sales and profits to most of the companies catering to his many needs and desires.

Benefiting in the second quarter of this year from the steadily increasing total of consumer spending were such industries as food, clothing, paper, drugs, retail chains and suppliers of the gadgets which are the status symbols of prosperity.

Free spending shoppers have brought increased profits to many retail chains, with some conspicuous exceptions.

In the first three months of the year retail firms scored a 21 per cent gain over the like period of 1964. In the second quarter of 1965 the profit upswing continued at the same rate.

Profit Gainers

Profit gainers in the 1965 second quarter over the same quarter of 1964 include: Sears, Roebuck with $45 million net earnings against $43 million a year ago; May Department Stores, $5.5 million against $5 million; Associated Dry Goods, $2.75 million against $1.8 million; Gimbel Brothers $2.1 million against $1.4 million; Allied Stores, $2.7 million against $906,038; and R. H. Macy, $1.04 million against $791,000. But slipping a little was Federated Department Stores, $11.5 million this year against $11.7 million last. Operating in the red were: E. J. Korvette, Arnold Constable, and Russeks.

In the food store field, A&P was ahead this year $11.7 million from $11.6 million. Jewel Tea, $2.6 million from $2.4 million; and Grand Union $2.4 million from $1.9 million. But Safeway Stores slipped to $9.8 million from $10.4 million in 1964's second quarter. And H. C. Boack operated at a loss.

Food Producers

Food producers, on average, scored a 15 per cent gain in profits in the first three months of 1965 over the year-ago period. Many continued the trend in the second quarter.

National Biscuit reported $8.6 million profits in its second quarter against $8.4 million the year before; Campbell Soup, $11.5 million against $10 million; Beatrice Foods, $4.2 million against $3.4 million; and Corn Products, $13.8 million against $12.7 million. But Fairmont Foods was off to $1.08 million from $1.1 million; and General Baking operated at a loss.

Americans continue to buy more and more drugs, particularly the new ones as they hit the market. Drug makers netted a 16 per cent profit advance in the first quarter over a year ago. In the second quarter just ended most companies showed a further profit rise.

The second quarter net earnings of Chas. Pfizer & Co. were $12.6 million, up from $10.1 million in the like 1964 period; Upjohn, $8 million up from $6 million; Parke, Davis, $6.4 million from $5.1 million; Abbott Laboratories, $4.6 million from $4.2

Plain Water From Tap Can be Great Luxury

BY HAL BOYLE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — America, I love you.

It's a wonderful feeling to be back home after nearly three months of reporting the war in South Viet Nam.

You want to turn handsprings in the street, kiss every pretty girl you meet, lap up every malted milk in town. But the most glorious thing of all is the wonderful taste of fresh water that you don't have to boil before drinking.

I guess that, aside from the presence of his loved ones, the thing a fellow unconsciously misses most in Viet Nam is the flavor of safe, honest water, drunk straight from the faucet. It's a pleasure to hold up a glass of it and just look at it.

When I mentioned this to a bartender at the airport, he replied:

Wild Ideas

"Well, have another glass of it on the house. But if everybody had wild ideas like that, guys like me would all be out of work."

Another thing that hits you when you return to America are the store windows. You feel like a kid in a candy store. There usually isn't much worthwhile to spend your money in a war zone, and you build up a mad desire to buy something — anything.

Window Shopping

San Francisco is one of the best cities of the world for window shopping. After an hour of it — thank heaven the fine shops were all closed at that hour — I entered a drugstore and after staring at all the displays finally made a purchase. I bought a pocket comb, an item I could have bought at a hundred street stands in Saigon.

When the clerk charged me a sales tax, I really felt I was in the land of the free. There's nothing more American than paying some kind of a tax — not even blueberry pie.

An odd thing was that crossing an American street gave me a feeling of nervous uncertainty. There is nothing more chaotic than traffic in the Far East, but there aren't as many big cars over there, and they don't come at you so quickly.

Report From Schlesinger

Cuba Made Kennedy Skeptical From Start

NEW YORK (AP) — The late President John F. Kennedy was skeptical about the 1961 Cuban invasion up to the moment he gave the final go-ahead, says Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., historian and former presidential adviser.

Schlesinger made the statement in the second of a series of excerpts from his forthcoming book, "A Thousand Days: John F. Kennedy in the White House."

The excerpts are being published by Life magazine.

Kennedy first heard about the Cuban invasion plans from Central Intelligence Agency Director Allen Dulles 12 days after the presidential election, Schlesinger said.

At that time, the plan already was far advanced and Kennedy gave directions for it to proceed, with the understanding that his interest did not mean commitment to the operation.

On March 28, 1961, Schlesinger said, he asked Kennedy what he thought of the invasion. "I think about it as little as possible," he said the president replied.

Critical Point

The historian added, "In his judgment, the critical point — the weak part of the case for going ahead — lay in the theory that the landings would touch off a mass insurrection" against the regime of Fidel Castro.

Schlesinger wrote that federal secrecy surrounding the invasion kept some government experts from giving sound advice on the ill-fated project to Kennedy.

"Neither the outgoing nor the incoming administrations wanted to make fundamental decisions," the historian said, "and most matters continued to move along existing tracks."

Dulles, Schlesinger said, was not able to provide Kennedy with any good, analytic advice because he was so personally involved in the plan.

Advisors Uninformed

And, the author indicated, some who might have given sound advice — such as Robert Amory Jr., deputy director of the CIA for intelligence — were not informed of the operation.

He also said that Kennedy was never shown a memorandum strongly opposing the plan. The memorandum was written by Chester Bowles, then under-secretary of state.

Schlesinger said Kennedy was forced to rely on advisers with whom he was not familiar, particularly the "entrenched" military and intelligence personnel who were unanimous in their approval of the proposed Bay of Pigs amphibious attack plan.

Part of the determination to keep the scheme alive, Schlesinger said, sprang from the embarrassment of calling it off. Even if the Cuban brigade were successfully disbanded, its members would disperse, disappointed and resentful, all over Latin America, he continued.

Military Intervention

Confronted by this argument, the historian said, Kennedy gave his o.k. to the invasion with the stipulation that there be "no United States military intervention," a stipulation to which no one involved made any objection, Schlesinger reported.

When the mission began to falter, Schlesinger wrote, some people argued that the United States should commit forces, saying U.S. prestige would suffer if the rebellion died.

Kennedy was deeply disturbed by the failure, Schlesinger said. "The vision haunted him of the men on the beaches, the men who had gone off with such splendid hopes, had fought so bravely and now would be shot down like dogs or carried off to Castro's prisons," he wrote.

CHARMING ADAPTABILITY

The history of our forebears is rich in legends of vision, courage and the ability to hold their dreams to effort. There is still another quality that they possessed to a marked degree: adaptability. We find this quality in the style of home decor and furniture which they bequeathed to us. It is our firm belief that this is responsible in a large measure for the steady popularity of Early American furniture and our affection for it.

It is not at all necessary to slavishly copy a period of the past when creating a background for Early American design—it settles in and is happily at home wherever it is.

The room sketched above is traditional in feeling even though the furnishings are Early American-inspired. Wood walls have been painted a soft off-white, and the window decor is faintly reminiscent of early 18th Century. Sofa is upholstered in apple green which was picked up from the pattern in the drapery fabric. Chair is honey beige. These pieces show up importantly above the deep-pinkish-beige carpet.

Warm wood tones of the maple tables add warmth and an added feeling of hominess.

We endeavor always to bring you furnishings that will add charm, comfort and beauty to your home—at prices that spell true value. We cordially invite you to come in and browse around leisurely... we are always happy to see you.

St. James, Started In 1873, Largest in Missouri Synod

BY HENRY SIMON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

SHAWANO—When Lutheran circuit rider Pastor Peter Dicke started the Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. James here in 1873, he said it would never amount to much.

Today that congregation, which Dicke predicted would experience slow growth because it was located "on the sandy shores of the Wolf River," is the largest congregation in the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

A trio of pastors—the Revs. Harold Parsch, Leonard Buelow and Daniel Schnorr—serve the parish, which has 4,080 baptized members and 3,037 communicants.

Although large congregations are not unusual in other denominations—notably the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches—the largeness of St. James is a rarity in Lutheran circles.

The general trend in Lutheran bodies seems to be to start mission churches—sometimes called "daughter" churches or "branches"—when a one-pastor parish approaches the 1,000-communicant member mark.

Yet St. James has no intention of splitting at the present time, and the congregation has voted against such proposals in the past. Why the unusual stand?

Save On Expenses
It is prompted, the pastors explain, by the feeling that expenses are saved, especially in building and other maintenance cost, by keeping the congregation as large as it is, rather than splitting.

The pastors add that there are 10 other churches of the Missouri Synod within a 10-mile radius of St. James, and thus expansion area is limited.

The pastors feel that their mission emphasis is to be an inner thrust—not into the inner core of the city, for Shawano has a 6,103 population, but rather into the ranks of delinquent church members.

Stable Community
"Growth must be internal, because our community is stable," Pastor Parsch says, and the statistics back up his point. In the past 15 years average Sunday attendance has gone up 1,100 to 2,100, while 400 communicants have been added.

"The greatest mission field is inside the church," Parsch says, and the St. James congregation is not one to bet backsliders and "dead wood" remain on its rolls simply because they add numbers.

"Church discipline strengthens a congregation," says Pastor Buelow, and the records of the parish, which has a thorough program to urge members to keep active, prove this.

The congregation has a staff of 24 full-time workers, including 15 teachers and one principal for its parish kindergarten and grade school, which has 425 pupils.

It built a new church in 1947, and has added additions to the 1937 school in 1951 and 1960.

W. E. Jiede, school principal and a teacher for almost 30 years, will leave St. James this fall to enroll at Concordia Theological Seminary, Springfield, Ill.

The 50-year-old man will take a 27-month course before entering the Lutheran ministry.

The change is not the only unusual facet of St. James' parish life. The congregation started a Saturday night service three years ago, which now draws an average of 360 persons.

Three services are held Sundays, and the 9 a.m. rite is broadcast over Shawano radio station WTCH. The broadcast for Sunday and all other festival receives is self-supporting. It receives no financial help from the congregation.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord, all the earth. . . . Psalm 96

Dr. Lee Hastings Bristol, Jr., has and is "singing unto the Lord a new song." His vital faith and talent has led him into many areas of service. Trained in the multiple careers of business, music and lay ministry, Dr. Bristol found conflict in sustaining them all.

After many successful years in business his music and lay ministry won out. In 1962 he accepted the presidency of Westminster Choir College in Princeton, N. J., a unique interdenominational institution which prepares young men and women for positions of musical leadership in churches and schools. Dr. Bristol's dynamic faith has been expressed in his lay sermons in the Episcopal church, in his books and articles, and in his sacred music. Composer of many hymns and organ compositions, he says, "Music transcends language in bringing people together who couldn't otherwise communicate." Now he is instilling that faith in young people at Westminster Choir College who will in turn instill it in others through music.

Dr. Bristol believes that "service is the rent we pay for our place on earth."

Value of Parish Churches

Britons Debate Future Of Large Cathedrals

LONDON (AP) — Is the day of the battleship, past? That is the question they are debating in the Church of England.

Those who are against new cathedrals argue it is better to build a score of smaller parish churches in their place. These could be spotted strategically, they say, to bring church life to the great new building estates or new towns growing up around British cities.

Cathedrals, they say, are just a waste of money and involve costly upkeep. Besides, once up, they can't be kept clean. Except for a few great occasions in the year they are not used to capacity. Some attract only a score of worshippers into their vast spaces at the regular Sunday services. On weekdays the priests and choir virtually are alone.

Opponents ask whether it is right for Christians to sponsor million-dollar cathedral extension projects, with all the vast capital expenditure involved, when other aspects of Christian work are neglected.

Spiritual Centers
Such talk has brought a sharp response from cathedral deans and their supporting canons. They argue their cathedrals are doing a useful job as spiritual center of each diocese and could not be replaced by any number of additional parish churches.

They say a diocese needs a big church building to accommodate all the big diocesan services. And all point to the shining example of the new Coventry Cathedral, which attracts around a million visitors a year and usually is crowded on Sunday.

The drive for cathedral funds goes ahead. The Yorkshire wool town of Bradford has just completed extensions worth $840,000 and Bristol is seeking to raise a similar sum.

But a real row started at Portsmouth, where the cathedral council has a plan for spending $980,000 on extending the present cathedral — a converted parish church—to make it a permanent memorial to the men who fell in liberating Europe.

French Landings
Although Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower directed the French landings from Portsmouth, the city has nothing to mark the fact except a simple granite block on the beach. The Portsmouth diocesan conference turned down the cathedral idea, suggesting that the money be better spent on churches in new housing areas, the cathedral authorities decided to go ahead anyway.

The Rev. Frederick S. Temple, vicar of St. Mary's, Portsmouth, second biggest parish church in the dockyard city, is one of those who argues that the days of vast church buildings are gone.

"The life of the diocese could be fostered equally well with a small cathedral," Canon Temple says. "The fact is that the people of Portsmouth are poor. The naval dockyard pays no overtime like the big industries in the midlands and most people work at the dockyard."

"However, now that the decision has been taken, there seems nothing more I can say. But the trouble isn't over."

On the Irish Sea Isle of Man, the Rt. Rev. Benjamin Pollard, 74, bishop of Sodor and Man, is in trouble about a cathedral too.

Dr. Pollard, oldest bishop in the Church of England, wants to crown his career before retirement by reinstating the ruined cathedral on the off-shore Island of Peel. Opponents say that, apart from expense, there is no point in establishing a great cathedral at a spot which is inaccessible even for Manxmen.

The Archbishops of Canterbury and York thus far have kept out of the cathedral controversy. But they are well aware that much of the present ecclesiastical real estate is not getting full use.

Recently they appointed a sharing of churches by the Church of England and other churches. The real problem is now to make one-day-a-week buildings economic.

Plan Joint Talks on New Universities

Senate-Assembly Conference Will Seek Compromise on State Schools in Northeast, Southeast

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — A joint senate-assembly conference committee will probably meet here Tuesday to attempt to resolve a dispute about details in proposed legislation to establish two new state universities in northeastern and southeastern Wisconsin.

Six representatives of the two houses will search for a compromise plan to resolve a deadlock between the two houses on the proper administrative authority for the new schools.

Both houses have shown by top-heavy votes that they favor the idea of additional decentralization of higher educational opportunity, but the assembly has preferred to hand the new units over to the University of Wisconsin at Madison, and the senate has leaned toward the choice of the board of regents of state colleges while holding that the legislature needs the advice of the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education on the matter.

County Home Management Agent Begins

OSHKOSH—Miss Sandra Seter began her full-time duties this week as new Home Management Agent for Winnebago County. A former Brillion High School teacher, she took part in the county 4-H camp program in June and spent two weeks in Oconto County of in-service training.

Her general responsibilities will be in the fields of youth work, homemakers activities and farm and home management.

A native of Deer Park, where her parents operate a dairy farm, she was graduated from Clear Lake High School and Stout State University where she majored in home economics. She worked for a year for Market Research Corp., Chicago, and taught at Brillion from January, 1964 to June of this year.

Wolves Clinch Boys' Title

Own 10-1 Record In Baseball Loop At New London

NEW LONDON—The Wolves clinched the minor division title in Boys' Baseball League play Wednesday when the second place Panthers lost 6-1 to the fifth place Cats.

The Wolves have a 10-1 season mark, while the second place Panthers are 8-4. The Wolves have two games remaining and the Panthers the same number.

Burton struck out 14 batters in the five-inning contest to lead the Cats to victory. Collar collected two doubles and a single for the winners while Kaepernick scored the only Panther run by belting a home run.

The Colts edged the Foxes 3-2 in a nine inning extra-inning battle. Scheid, the winner, and Ott, the losing pitcher, both struck out 15. The Colts scored in the ninth on a hit batter and the third double of the game by Pete Herres.

The Phillies kept their hopes for a second place finish in the major league alive by belting the Braves. Bob McIlraith hit a home run for the winners and John Thorn a homer for the losers.

Congress of Cities to Air Press-Politicians Problem

Municipal Government Reporting Topic for First Time at Conclave

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

DETROIT, MICH. — City hall reporters and public officials from across the nation will roll up their shirtsleeves Sunday and engage in a frank, no-holds-barred discussion of municipal government reporting.

The confrontation between press and politicians has been given billing as one of the intriguing sessions of the 1965 Congress of Cities being held here through next Wednesday.

Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee, president of the 2,000-member National League of Cities, says the discussion on "City Hall and the Press" will be the first in the 42-year history of the congress.

To Air Gripes

Several timely topics will be aired, including the gripes city officials have against reporters and editors, and visa versa.

The reporters and public officials will explore whether there are misunderstandings on both sides about the problems each faces in trying to do a job.

An attempt will also be made to define a line in press releases as to where information stops and propaganda starts.

Mayors of various cities — both large and small — will tell how they treat the members of the press.

hall beat has changed with the changing city.

An assessment will also be made as to whether today's press is doing enough interpretive urban reporting, and whether reporters are equipped to do the job.

After the last round, a report will be prepared to include all the viewpoints and ideas.

"While clashes of opinion are sure to arise, we feel that — more than inspiring controversy — this meeting will lay the groundwork for more effective communication in the future between city government and its citizens," Healy opined.

Mayors Clarence Mitchell of Appleton and Donald A. Tilleman of Green Bay are among the Wisconsin delegation attending the five-day congress.

Mitchell runs his office with an "open door" policy for newsmen, giving them access to his daily mail and municipal events, such as appointments, he holds a briefing session prior to making official announcements.

He usually meets with reporters about 10 a.m. to answer questions. When the mayor has conferences in his office, or meetings in other parts of city hall, they are open to the press.

How to Interpret

"How can newsmen and officials put 'hate groups' into proper perspective?" will be another area to be explored.

"The problems and the needs of the cities are great, but there is none greater than public understanding," says Patrick Healy, Washington, executive director of the National League of Cities.

"Politicians, consultants, critics, civic leaders, editors, broadcasters, telecasters — all have important roles to play in translating urban problems of growth, change and decay in understandable terms and choices," Healy added.

As a result, he said, many questions of city hall-press relationships are raised.

Changing Beat

They are expected to be covered when newsmen and politicians discuss how the city

CAP Head Says County Funds Much Needed

$5,600 to be Used For Equipment, New Study Materials

Funds from Outagamie County expected soon by the Fox Cities squadron of the Civil Air Patrol are "desperately needed," Commander Erwin Roberts said today.

The County Board of Supervisors allocated $5,600 of its budget this year for the CAP squadron, but had not released the money pending passage of a bill permitting such allocations.

The bill, signed by Gov. Warren Knowles Thursday, permits Wisconsin counties to provide funds or donate property and equipment to Civil Air Patrols.

Roberts said funds have been coming out of "individual pockets" in past months for CAP activity. He added the new funds would give the patrol new equipment and "200 per cent more flexibility and increased dependability."

Fund Earmarked

The funds will be spent on maintaining radio equipment — including updating some of the instruments — and vehicles and buying training equipment, such as textbooks for new cadets.

The squadron will be able to coordinate activities better with city and county Civil Defense, county sheriff's department and city police, Roberts said.

The group currently has 10 emergency vehicles. A group of such radio-equipped vehicles cost as much as equipping one police car, Roberts said.

In the past three months the CAP has assisted at seven accidents, spotted one tornado, and helped at the new Outagamie County Airport.

Malting Firm Fire at Chilton

CHILTON — Fire broke out in the upper floor of the elevator shaft at the Chilton Malting Co., 137 E. Main St., about 9 p.m. Friday night when the motor belt which operates the elevator became overheated, burned and dropped to the floor, igniting nearby materials. Damage was minor.

Chilton firemen carried extinguishers up the long steps of the main building's tall tower to put out the fire on the top floor. According to Fire Chief Norbert Sturm, if the firemen had arrived 15 minutes later the fire could have been serious because of its position in the elevator.

A neighbor noticed the fire and called the company manager John Berger, who notified the fire department.

Appleton Resumes Search For New Finance Director

For Second Time City's First Choice Turns Down $10,000 Job

Appleton is still without a new finance director today after new finance director today after the city's No. 1 choice declined to accept the key position.

It was the second time in two months the best qualified applicant for the job, which has a $10,000 to $11,000 a year salary range, turned it down.

The position became vacant June 25 when the resignation of Donald E. Hassler, the city's first finance director, became effective. He resigned in the spring, claiming that due to certain conditions the finance department functions were being handicapped.

Says No Cooperation

Hassler also indicated the city clerk wasn't cooperating. The claim was denied by Clerk Elden Broehm.

Mayor Mitchell said City Treasurer Ray Feuerstein would continue to serve as acting finance director until the position is filled.

The latest candidate to refuse the post, which is appointive, was a Janesville resident. Officials of the State Bureau of Personnel, who conducted written examinations of the various applicants, said the 33-year-old accountant had an excellent record and training.

Agreed On Man

Concurring in the opinion were the members of a special committee, consisting of the mayor and three local certified public accountants. The personnel and finance committees had also indicated every effort should be made to hire the man.

Mitchell said the man and his wife visited in Appleton at his request Thursday. The job rejection, Mitchell was told, was "for personal reasons."

"The couple said they liked the community but decided to stay where they are and in private industry," Mitchell said.

The city was prepared to pay a starting salary of at least $825 a month.

Didn't Want To Move

"The couple is expecting their fourth child soon and there were other personal situations which would not make it advantageous for the man to make a move now," Mitchell said.

In addition to getting a good look at the city, the top applicant also talked with others and was brought up to date on the political pulse beat of the city government.

Mitchell announced he would contact the runner-up on the basis of overall ratings, and offer the job to him. There is also a possibility the third-ranked candidate will be interviewed again.

Top 3 Were Close

The top three men were closely ranked, according to Mitchell and the interviewing committee. "All three were considered excellent men," Mitchell said.

The first time the city advertised for applicants and conducted examinations a few months ago, the city's first choice also declined to accept. A resident of the Detroit area, he reportedly received a sizeable increase in salary from his employer to remain there.

Outagamie Sheriff Seeks More Personnel on Staff

Spice Wants Part-Time Night Help

Outagamie County Sheriff Calvin Spice Friday asked the county board's courts, justice and enforcement committee for additional part-time personnel and the appointment of an investigator to a night shift to work with the part-time help.

Spice's request was the result of a controversy between himself and the committee against the county board's executive committee about overtime pay for investigators who answer complaints and conduct investigations after their regular working day ends at 5:30 p.m.

There are four investigators in the sheriff's department who work five nine-hour days weekly. Their regular five days gives them a 45-hour week, but the 48-hour total accumulates when they give the county the first three hours of night calls.

Becomes Overtime Anything which totals more than three hours at night brings the weekly total over 48 hours and becomes overtime.

The dispute started over payment of overtime for three investigators who have accumulated substantial overtime hours since Jan. 1, but haven't been paid.

Sheriff's Lts. Jack Zuelzke has 109 hours, Russell Bowers, 84 hours, and Joseph Vander Oever, five hours.

The executive committee has ruled that the three men can be paid their hourly rate of $2.50 per hour for all hours over 80 hours, but that they should be given compensatory time off for the balance of the hours.

"Vicious Circle" Spice claims, however, that by giving the men hours off instead of overtime pay, he is forced to send other investigators out on an overtime basis "which just causes a vicious circle."

The executive committee also ruled that in the future it will refuse to authorize any additional overtime pay. As a result, the courts, justice, and enforcement committee told Spice today that he would have to give his investigators time off for the hours accumulated so far and for future overtime hours.

In an attempt to help unsnarl the problem, the committee this morning authorized Spice to use part-time deputy sheriffs to serve civil process papers "whenever necessary" instead of Undersheriff Norbert Marx.

Then Marx could be used to help the investigators when they are short-handed because of the time-off problem, committee chairman John Schreiter said.

In a letter to the committee, Spice said Friday: "The recent decision by the executive committee regarding overtime for investigators, compels me to make the following request:

"That three uniformed deputies be added to the staff of the sheriff's department. These men would be trained to handle all calls, complaints, etc., pertaining to police work and also could assist the traffic police in times of need. They would be assigned to the night shift along with a trained investigator.

"Action Imperative" "It is imperative," Spice stated, "that some action be taken at once to insure the protection of persons and property during the night hours for the citizens of Outagamie County.

"The decision with regard to overtime by the executive committee," he said, "restrains me from allowing any overtime to accumulate over 80 hours and this 80 hours must be taken in time off."

"With the number of complaints and the small staff," Spice concluded, "working conditions will not allow men to give these men time off, therefore, the above request has been made with the hope you will give this favorable attention."

No action was taken by the committee Friday morning on Spice's request.

The executive committee has asked the courts, justice and enforcement committee to make a study and a review of the work-load and assignments in the sheriff's and traffic police departments before any recommendations are made.

Water Problem Study to Begin In Appleton

Public Works Head, Superintendent Will Begin Research

Robert W. Bues, public works director, and William Gallagher, water superintendent, will meet Monday to start planning the consolidation of all studies and recommendations concerning Appleton's water problem.

The two officials Tuesday were asked by the board of public works to prepare a condensed report for the council's consideration. Two Chicago consulting firms, hired by the city to prepare feasibility studies, have recommended Lake Michigan as the No. 1 choice for a future water supply and have advocated a joint effort by Fox Valley communities.

Little Interest However, other communities have shown little interest. Most now draw their supply from Lake Winnebago and consider it adequate for the future.

Lake Winnebago has been recommended as a second choice for Appleton as a temporary supply.

A report from the Fox Valley Regional Planning Commission technical committee advises that Appleton go to Lake Winnebago for its source now. The Wolf River Basin Regional Planning commission has recommended Lake Michigan.

Bues has urged immediate council action because water consumption is increasing faster than the ability of the existing facilities to treat water.

It would take three to five years for the project whether the city went to Lake Winnebago or to Lake Michigan. The present water supply is the Fox River which is adequate as far as quantity but is lacking in quality and treatment costs are high.

Cost of a Lake Winnebago project have been roughly estimated at $2 million and $12 million to $15 million for Lake Michigan.

Syngman Rhee Widow Ailing

HONOLULU, Hawaii (AP) — Mrs. Syngman Rhee, widow of the former president of Korea, was reported in satisfactory condition at Queen's Hospital Friday.

The 65-year-old Mrs. Rhee was taken to the hospital suffering what the doctor called physical and emotional exhaustion after funeral services for her husband in the Korean Christian church in Honolulu Wednesday night.

Her planned trip to Korea for the final rites and burial have been called off.

The Rhees' adopted son, Rhee In-soo, accompanied the body of the 90-year-old Korean patriot back to his homeland aboard a special U.S. Air Force flight.

Dear Heloise:
I am the proud owner of a new disposal unit. But I find that odors come from the unit. Can you help me?

H. O.
Many people complain of this. I believe it is because they do not use them correctly. After the garbage is put in unit has done all its chopping (you can tell this as you won't see any more food in the unit), leave the water running a bit so that all the chopped food will be sure to be washed down through the pipes thoroughly so no odor can come back up.

Also, citrus fruit peels, such as grapefruit, oranges and lemons are wonderful for removing odors. Grind them up last and let them set a bit. Sweeten your drain.

And, too, you can fill your sink with water and pour in some disinfectant such as pine, then pull the plug and turn on your switch. This makes it clean all the way.

To Your Good Health Serial X-Rays Can Detect Lung Cancer

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are three sets of X-rays necessary to determine whether a lung condition exists? I had a heart problem in 1959 and my doctor ordered annual X-rays of the area.

can exist for any of a number of reasons, some of them of minor significance.

If the shadow is expanding, or changing, then it becomes urgently important to know in what way it is changing and how much and how fast.

Serial X-rays are bound to add up in cost, but when the purpose is to determine whether you have lung cancer or some other serious disease, don't you think the important thing is to find out?

You received good news. I'm glad.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am told that I am one of the rare women who can tell when I can become pregnant. Around the middle of my cycle I have a bad pain in my side. Could it be that the ovum is falling then? Mrs. D.

This is called "mittelschmerz," or middle pain, and in some women accompanies the separation of the ovum from the ovary. This is the time at which pregnancy is possible. It is probable that some release of fluid is the actual cause of the pain.

Dear Dr. Molner: We learned two months ago that our five-year-old son has Perthes Disease. A week later he was in a brace. Our doctor said he might be in it for two to four years, and told us the bone at the hip was dead from not getting blood. Please answer the following:

1—Could this be caused from an accident?
2—Is there a chance of malignancy?
3—Will the leg that is in the brace continue to grow?
4—Is there any exercise we can use to help the blood flow back quicker?—MRS. W.

This condition, or to give it its full name, Legg-Calve-Perthes Disease, happens from time to time with youngsters, and without fail it frightens parents. It would frighten me, too, except that I know that with proper care, the child usually recovers. Your answers are:

1—Injury of some sort is a common cause, but not necessarily a violent accident.
2—It is not a malignant condition.
3—The necrotic (destroyed) bone will be replaced by new bone, so the leg should grow to normal size.
4—No, exercises won't help. The healing process is slow and there is no way to hurry it. Naturally the brace is a nuisance, often an uncomfortable one, but taking the load off the affected bone is a vital part of the treatment. The most important part, in fact.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Molner's helpful booklet, "How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed." For your copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing along, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all readers mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. (Copyright, 1965)

Nelson Backs Great Lakes Plan Group

Northern Wisconsin
Officials Urged to Start Organizing

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 100 county and city officials in northern Wisconsin were urged Thursday by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., to lay the groundwork for an Upper Great Lakes Regional Action Planning Commission.

Such a commission would be established under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 which has passed the Senate and is before the House. Nelson said enactment by mid-August is viewed as certain.

Nelson also urged many of the same county leaders to update their plans for such public works improvement projects as roads, sewage or water systems, or tourism facilities in preparation for new loans and grants to be made available under the legislation.

Sagging Economy
Provision in the legislation for the planning commissions was backed by Nelson. He said a commission will be created soon after enactment of the bill and the Upper Great Lakes region could then begin to combat problems of unemployment and a sagging economy on an organized, multi-state basis.

Nelson asked city, county and chamber of commerce officials in Ashland, Bayfield, Burnett, Douglas, Florence, Iron, Langlade, Lincoln, Marinette, Oneida, Price, Rusk, Sawyer, Taylor, Vilas, Washburn, Menominee, Brown and Marathon counties to be ready to work with such a commission.

He urged the counties to begin formulating plans for creation of economic development districts.

This would permit the Wisconsin counties to meet problems on an area basis in conjunction with the regional action planning commission which would take a regional approach.

Nelson said tentative plans have parts of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan to be included in such a regional commission.

Your Problems
13-Year-Old Should be Able To Have Haircut, Ann Says

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For 25 years I have been going to showers for brides and buying them presents. I figured I'd get even when a son got married.

The thing that really gets my blood pressure up is those satin bows she puts over the dog's ears—and that gold collar. Isn't it immoral to lavish such luxury on a dog when there are millions of starving people in the world? What do you say?—Nauseated
Dear Nauseated: There is no connection between lavishing luxury on dogs and the plight of millions of starving people. One is a sickness, the other is a tragedy.

Ike's Fishing Catch Kept Top Secret

MINOCQUA (AP) — "Gone fishing."
That was the report again Thursday on the second day of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's vacation in northern Wisconsin's lake region.
"He just loves this country," said the former First Lady, Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower.
Ike's catch, however, was kept a secret.

Declarer drew the last trump, ruffed a club in dummy, cashed the ace of spaces and then led a diamond to thrust West into the lead. West had only clubs and diamonds, and any return would let dummy ruff while South discarded a spade.

Jose Cardenal, who gets a green light for stealing, doesn't stop at running for the Los Angeles Angels.

Cardenal became the Angels' leading all-around hitter Friday night as Los Angeles defeated Boston 7-3, handing the floundering Red Sox their 19th loss in the last 23 games.

The 21-year-old rookie, the American League's No. 2 base stealer, didn't add to his total of 30, but he did collect a three-run homer, a double and two singles.

The performance, his best of the season, increased his average to .275, his runs batted in total to 38 and his homer total to nine. He leads the Angels in the first two categories and trails Willie Smith by two in home

Ram Linebacker To Quit Football For Tarzan Role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Linebacker Mike Henry is going to resign from the Los Angeles Rams to become a full-line movie Tarzan, says producer Sy Weintraub.

Weintraub announced Friday he had signed the handsome, 6-foot-3, 230-pound athlete to a seven year contract for the role.

Henry, a former tackle at the University of Southern California, was a ninth round draft choice of the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1957. He has been playing with the Rams since 1960, devoting all his off-season time to acting.

Henry earlier this year completed one Tarzan film for Weintraub.

Dale Likes Packers' Camp

GREEN BAY (AP) — Carrol Dale, the Green Bay Packers new flanker back, and more than three score other football players who seek permanent jobs with the team, worked out in humid 91 degree heat Friday but no one complained — particularly Dale.

"It's hard work and it's tough," said Dale, "but it's worth it. It's part of winning and I'm certainly willing to do it. I'm tired of losing and that's for sure."

Dale, 26, came to the Packers from the Los Angeles Rams in a trade for veteran linebacker Dan Currie. He is a five-year man in the National Football League, and had been one of

Wilkerson Hurls Hitless Ball in Relief

QUINCY, Ill. — Curt Motton's bat and hitless relief hurling Derrel Wilkerson lifted the Fox Cities Foxes to a 3-2 Midwest League victory over Quincy's Gems here Friday night.

The triumph boosted the third place Foxes to within 1/2 game of runnerup Cedar Rapids. Pace setting Burlington holds a 3 1/2 game edge over Fox Cities.

The Foxes invade Burlington tonight in the opener of an all-important 3-game series, before returning home Tuesday to face Clinton on "Dairy Night."

Motton sparked the first inning uprising and also scored what proved to be the Foxes' winning run in the fifth. Dick Hickerson walked with one out in the first and Motton slammed a Bud Knittel-pitch over the left field fence for a 2-run homer.

Quincy reached starter and winner Hank Pawlowicz for an unearned run in the second on a pair of singles and an error. The Foxes, however, increased the margin to 3-1 in the fifth.

Motton singled and scored on Jim Rouse's double to left field but Quincy bounced back with a run in the bottom of the fifth to close the gap to 3-2.

Pawlowicz was relieved by Derrel Wilkerson, at the start of the seventh inning. Big Hank was credited with his seventh victory in 16 decisions. Wilkerson fanned four and walked only one while holding the Gems hitless in the last three innings.

Dodger Lead Dwindles After Losing in 12th Inning, 4-3

Bob Friend Stops Cubs on 1-Hitter; Reds Tip Astros

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mauri Willis certainly tried. The lithe Los Angeles speed-ster collected five base hits, stole two bases for a season total of 64 and won an impromptu foot race against Bill White.

And still the Dodgers managed to lose, dropping their third in a row 4-3 to St. Louis in 12 innings as their National League lead dwindled to 1 1/2 games over Cincinnati.

But there was no overlooking Willis' one-man show.

He led off the first with a single and immediately found himself caught off base on a pickoff attempt by Tracy Stallard.

White, at first base, decided he could make the tag and started chiding Willis toward second.

But when the two reached second base, White was the runner-up.

Willis proceeded to third on a bunt by Willie Davis and scored on Ron Fairly's sacrifice fly.

White Homers

White tied it 1-1 with a homer in the second, so Willis took over again in the sixth, leading off with a double, taking third on a long fly and putting the Dodgers ahead 2-1 on Lou Johnson's single.

Dodger starter Don Drysdale, who was not involved in the decision, made it 3-1 with his fifth homer of the season in the fifth, then Willis singled and promptly stole second. But John Kennedy grounded out to end the inning.

After two walks and producing singles by Curt Flood and Phil Gagliano gave the Cardinals a tie in the eighth, Willis came up with one on and one out in the ninth and singled, putting the potential winning run on second. But Wally Moon hit into a doubleplay.

Willis gave it one more try in the 11th when he beat out a hit that loaded the bases with two out. But again the batter behind him couldn't help, pinch hitter Don LeJohn grounding out.

In the 12th, Mike Shannon doubled, Ken Boyer singled, the Cardinals won and Willis had only his statistics to show for his night's work.

Most Base Hits

But they're impressive. Besides his amazing accumulation of stolen bases, Willis has 114 hits — most on the Dodgers — and is riding a 16-game hitting streak, currently the longest in the majors. He has hit at a .466 clip during that period, lifting his over-all mark to .286.

The Reds, meanwhile, closed ground as Frank Robinson stroked four hits and Joey Jay allowed only three in a 9-1 victory over Houston.

Elsewhere, Bob Friend pitched a one-hitter in Pittsburgh's 6-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs, San Francisco ended Milwaukee's 10-game winning streak with a 5-1 victory and the New York Mets edged Philadelphia 3-2 in 10 innings.

Miss Nienhaus Loses in Finals Of State Tourney

Carol Jean Sorenson, of Racine, Takes Golf Title by 7-6 Margin

RACINE (AP) — Carol Jean Sorenson, a 17-year-old Racine high school student who took medalist honors on her home Meadowbrook course, showed that it was not a lucky performance. She won the Wisconsin Women's Golf Championship Friday.

Carol Jean defeated Mary Beth Nienhaus of Appleton, the state public links champion, 7 and 6 in the finals of the 52nd annual tournament.

The Racine girl, who won the junior title last year and like a girl of similar name—Carol O. Sorenson of Janesville—won the senior title in her first try. Miss Sorenson of Racine may meet Miss Sorenson of Janesville in direct competition at Dubuque, Iowa, next week in the Trans-Mississippi Tournament.

One Woman Show

Miss Sorenson of Racine made the state meet a one-woman show when her namesake did not enter. She scored a 38-38 — 76 in the morning round Friday in the 36-hole final. This 3-over-par was the lowest round of the tournament and gave Miss Sorenson a commanding lead which she never relinquished through 27 holes.

Carol Jean struck the decisive blow on the 29th hole when she exploded out of a trap for a winning par 3. They halved the 30th and the match was over. Miss Nienhaus had 41-41—82 in the morning.

Jane Hurley of Milwaukee won the junior title, defeating Nancy Stevani of Kenosha 4 and 3. Mary Ann Beniciscutto of Waterford won low gross honors in the special 54-hole medal play tournament with 272.

Flight winners were: First—Jackie Molinaro, Madison Nakoma, defeated Jean Kulow, Milwaukee North Hills 4 and 3.

Second—Mrs. Russell Strand, Lake Ripley, beat Mrs. Charlene Lawrence, Kenosha, 4 and 3.

Third—Pat Straub, Madison Nakoma, defeated Mrs. Robert Welch, Madison Blackhawk, 6 and 5.

Fourth — Mrs. John Stengel, Green Bay, beat Mrs. John Mannebach, Rivermoor, 1 up.

Fifth—Sue Vallier, Milwaukee Westmoor, beat Mrs. Jerry Welch, Madison Nakoma, 5 and 4.

Junior First Flight — Joanne Perry, Oconomowoc, defeated Carla Heilerman, Oconomowoc, 4 and 3.

Rookie FB Leaves Bear Grid Camp

RENSSELAER, Ind. (AP) — Pat Crain, rookie fullback from Clemson, made an unexplained departure from the Chicago Bears' training camp, it was disclosed by Coach George Halas Friday.

Crain, drafted No. 3 by the Bears two years ago as a Clemson redshirt, failed to appear for a Thursday workout.

A teammate said Crain had gone home. He lives at Latrobe, Pa.

"I'd like to talk to the boy and find out what's wrong," said Halas. "Our fullback position certainly offers an opportunity to every able newcomer."

With Rick Casares traded to the Washington Redskins, the Bears have two seasoned fullbacks, Joe Marconi — injured most of last season — and Charley Bivins.

Other rookies competing for the position are Brian Piccolo of Wake Forest, currently sidelined with a pulled leg muscle; Ralph Kurek of Wisconsin, and Art Robinson of Los Angeles State.

Heat Helps 'Stars' Get in Condition

CHICAGO (AP) — The heat wave in Chicago, with temperatures soaring into the 90s, is helping the College All-Stars get in condition for their Aug. 6 meeting with the Cleveland Browns in Soldier Field.

"This hot weather is the best thing in the world for the players," said Mike McCormack, line coach on offense. "Especially after our scrimmage Wednesday. It gives the players a chance to work out the bumps and bruises."

Storm Halts Three Other Tilts In Fox Valley Softball Meet

Only one game was played in the Fox Valley Softball Tournament at Telulah Park Friday night and in that contest Frank and Pat's, of Neenah, thumped Eagles Club, Kaukauna, 13-3.

The three other games were halted because of the storm which hit while the Dag's Drive-in and Lom's Bar, Green Bay, was underway. The game was stopped in the top of the sixth inning and will be resumed at that point. Dag's was leading, 6-2 with Bob Hietpas on the mound. The game was resumed at 1 p.m. today.

Other make-up tilts this afternoon included Bob and Mary's Bar, Kaukauna, meeting Vic Lough's Supper Club, Green Bay, at 1:30 p.m. and Milt's 616 Club, Green Bay facing Kubisch Inn, Kellnersville, at 2:45 p.m.

Four games are on tap tonight with the winner of the Bob and Mary's-Lough's tilt to meet the winner of the 616 Club-Kubisch Inn game at 6 p.m.

At 7:15 p.m. Bleier's Bar, Appleton, will face Oscar's of Fond du Lac; at 8:15 p.m. Wertsch Motors, Oshkosh will meet McDonald's of Green Bay and at 9:15 p.m. Frank and Pat's will meet the winner of the Dag's-Lom's clash.

Frank and Pat's belted three home runs in the win over Eagles. Carl Springer, Len Adams and Tom Malchow each socked homers and Malchow had four runs batted in for the game.

Gary Wiegman had a home run for Eagles and Jeff Vander Velden and Joe DeBruin rapped doubles.

Gary Klevesahl Hits Grand Slam Homer for SSAC

Southside Athletic Club defeated the Police Department, 11-10, on Gary Klevesahl's grand slam home run in the bottom of the fifth.

Teamsters defeated Jenkel Oil, 8-4, as Fuller slammed a pair of homers. Home runs by John Springer and Brian Kasten helped Baur Truck to a 9-0 victory over Teamsters.

"Curly" Manthe of The Post-Crescent pitched the only shut-out of the week, blanking the Police Department, 10-0, on five hits.

Jim Pagliaroni hit two homers for the Pirates and Donn Clendenon one.

The Mets won in the 10th on singles by Ed Kranepool, Chuck Hiller and John Stephenson. That gave the victory to Jack Fisher, who brought his record to 7-11 with a five-hitter.

The game had been tied since the fourth inning when Jim Hickman hit a solo homer for the Mets.

Spahn Won't Answer Any More Statements by Bragan

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Warren Spahn said Friday night he will no longer answer statements made about him by his former manager, Bobby Bragan of the Milwaukee Braves.

"I'm not going to qualify any remarks Bragan makes," said Spahn, picked up Monday as a free agent by the San Francisco Giants. "That's what Bragan wants. That's why he says those things."

Bragan contended that the 44-year-old southpaw's "personal goals have always obliterated everything else."

Spahn pitched for the Braves from 1946 through 1964 before he was sold to the New York Mets. Bragan started managing at Milwaukee in 1963.

"I never felt that our team effort was as important to him as his personal desires," said Bragan.

The Milwaukee manager charged Spahn merely was out to build career records. Spahn already has 360 lifetime victories, more than any other left-hander. One more victory would put Spahn sixth on the all-time major league list and within range of moving up to third place.

Although Spahn declined comment Friday, before the Braves met the Giants, he did say upon his arrival Wednesday that his decision to play for San Francisco was made for more than personal reasons.

"If I win a game here, it means something," said Spahn. "It's a contribution toward a pennant instead of just another win on my record."

One-Hitter Is Second In Bob Friend's Career

CHICAGO (AP)—The slider, a pitch originally belittled as the nickel curve but currently found in most successful pitching repertoires, has a new friend.

He's Bob Friend, veteran Pittsburgh right-hander who hurled a one-hit, 6-0, shutout over the Chicago Cubs Friday.

"I only wish I had started using it eight years ago," said Friend who knows he's a better workman than his current 5-7 record would indicate.

Friend missed his no-hit bid in the fourth inning after retiring the first 10 men. Don Landrum then bounced a ball deep to shortstop Gene Alley and beat it out for a hit.

Second in Career

By coincidence, it was the second one-hitter in Friend's career, both against the Cubs in Chicago.

In 1955, when Friend became the first pitcher in the majors to lead his league in earned-run average while hurling for a last place team, he lost a no-hitter in the eighth inning.

"I remember it well," said the 34-year-old Friend. "There was one out and Frankie Baumholtz hit one towards second base. Johnny O'Brien made a great stop and throw but Baumholtz had it beat."

Friend, whose 34 career shutouts are tops among active right-handers in the National League, has high hopes the victories will soon start piling up.

"I've started 21 games and we've won 14 of them. My trouble has been that in too many games I haven't been the pitcher of decision."

"And I've had some tough assignments. Four times I've started against Sammy Ellis (Cincinnati), twice against Sandy Koufax and I also lost a 1-0 game to Chris Short (Philadelphia)."

"I'm pitching as well or better than I ever have and a lot of the credit should go to Clyde King, who got me working on a slider."

Added Safety Equipment for Autos

The announcement by General Motors that it would make six formerly extra safety items part of the standard equipment on all its 1966 model passenger cars undoubtedly will be followed by similar plans by other major automobile corporations. Concern over the carnage on American highways, especially on summer weekends, has reached Washington and hearings are under way about possible legislation to require certain safety equipment on all automobiles operated in the nation.

In June the federal government announced that in the future all the cars it purchased — some 70,000 a year — would have to have certain items of equipment including the six safety features General Motors will now include on all cars. These are rear seat belts, padded instrument panel and sun visor, back up lights, outside rear view mirror and two speed windshield wiper and washer. The government in addition will require recessed instruments and control devices, four way flasher systems and stronger steering wheels than are on standard model cars. The government, of course, is not as handicapped as many private car owners as far as extra cost is concerned.

It is not easy to pinpoint the exact cause of each accident but probably the human element is of major importance. A split second — or a long record — of carelessness, intoxication, high speed, inconsideration of the other drivers and poor judgment as to distance and speed are to blame. But certainly the construction of the automobile and its safety features are also important in order to give the driver and his passengers the major protection. As Senator Gaylord Nelson has so strenuously protested, the tires on many cars are not strong enough to carry the extra loads of vacation travelers or the high speeds on super highways.

If it is necessary for the federal government to consider legislation about how automobiles are built, the individual states are once more falling down on their responsibilities. Although uniformity among the states is not essential, certain safety requirements, above all the working condition of standard equipment, could be similar. Along this line we wonder whether Wisconsin should not make a safety check on brakes, lights, horns and safety belts mandatory for the annual renewal of an automobile license as do many states. While the safety checks around the state may catch the majority of automobiles it is usually possible for someone who knows there is something wrong with his car to scoot around the block and evade the examination. The careless owners who drive cars with faulty or inadequate equipment are also likely to be the careless drivers on the highway. A required safety check annually would put the burden of maintaining his car upon the owner where it should be.

Added safety features or equipment in good working order will not halt the accidents but conceivably they could give more drivers and passengers a better chance. Every long weekend there are more people, including small children, killed on United States highways than men we have lost in the entire Viet Nam fracas. Any reasonable method of slowing down the carnage is worth some serious thought.

Is Education for Automatons?

American education has been slammed, defended and variously criticized and lauded but most emphatically after the Russian Sputnik began to orbit the earth and we feared we were being beaten in the classrooms and laboratories by the Reds. The emphasis was upon the quality of education, particularly in our public schools, and the result was a firm stepping up of standards especially in science and math. But now a couple of books have been published about our elementary and secondary schools which deal far more with the attitudes engendered in the schools and which certainly are of the utmost importance, not only for making rockets but in developing a sense of values for the future.

John Holt in How Children Fail charges that various pressures in the elementary and primary grades push the child toward acceptance of the "system" and stifle individual growth toward independence and initiative. This is even true in the so-called progressive schools, originally established to allow the child to learn and develop at his own rate of speed and according to his individual abilities and interests. Edgar Friedenberg in Coming Of Age in America puts the blame almost entirely upon the high school. Both authors use case histories to indicate the values accepted by children and adolescents as important in school and in life.

The list is discouraging. Social acceptance rates high along with being well-rounded, poised and popular. Friedenberg's book, its title taken from Margaret Mead's famed anthropological study Coming Of Age In Samoa, mainly lacks consideration that the pressures upon a youngster before he gets to high school are important. But the choice given to adolescents is slim indeed, according to both authors. Either he conforms and accepts the tyranny not only of his peers but of his parents and teachers as well, or he declares his independence and is a virtual social outcast except among other beatniks or drop-outs.

Both authors are blaming the schools but certainly as important in this drive toward being accepted by the crowd is parental influence. The father who wants his son to make the team at all cost or the mother who frets if her daughter isn't prom queen probably both contribute considerably toward placing such minor goals out of proportion in importance. But certainly, as Holt and Friedenberg point out, the insistence upon society as the major good in schools is serious.

It is not at all easy to merge the necessity for developing individual abilities and opinions with the needs of society as a whole. But of course it is the true individual in the long run who contributes the most toward society. Somehow understanding of this has been lost to a great many parents and some teachers. And part of the trouble is that schools have taken over, often by default, responsibilities that should be that of parents.

We have demonstrated that educational standards can be raised, for example in space competition with the Soviet Union. But the aim of American education is not to turn out on an assembly line a generation of automatons, properly correct and blandly accepting inadequate standards of values. We need the beatniks to shake us out of a lethargy and the recent upheavals on various university campuses may also be a reaction to earlier educational years and smothering pushes toward a mold.

Plastic Seaweed to Fight Erosion

Coastal cities which have experienced the ravages of erosion as a result of the tides have found that in some places seaweed plays a big part in reducing the damage.

Losses have been found heaviest where the seaweed is sparse or missing. As a result, some Danish experts got the idea of anchoring plastic seaweed in strategic places and their early experiments have met with some success.

Among the places suffering yearly damage by erosion of its beaches is Bournemouth, almost in the center of the British southern coast along the English Channel. Bournemouth has very little natural seaweed. In recent years it has lost sections of some of its best beaches, and a few months ago part of its East Cliff plunged into the Channel. The inroads by the tides have caused great concern to the pleasant residential and resort community of 153,965. It has six miles of sandy bathing beach and five miles of promenade, along with more than 1,400 acres of public parks and pleasure gardens within its 17.9 square miles.

A government-backed agency, the Hydraulic Research Agency, and Britain's largest chemical company, Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., are combining in their efforts to solve Bournemouth's problem. They have begun tests on a small scale in Southborne Beach, after a study of the work in Denmark and a survey of their own.

Imperial Chemical is making a plastic seaweed by using a durable fiber, polypropylene. It is anchoring 8-foot-long clumps of the fiber in about 12 feet of water, some 400 feet offshore and using red buoys to mark the location.

If the experiment is successful, the borough's engineer envisions a protective line of the artificial seaweed along the entire seafloor. Three or four feet of sand have vanished at times from the beaches between the winter and summer tides. As newly as can be determined, this sand is deposited elsewhere along the shore, but usually in parts not favorable for bathing.

More than 100,000 visitors flock weekly to Bournemouth. If the experiment should be effective in blocking erosion, it is entirely possible that it will lead to worldwide emulation, perhaps in lakes and rivers as well as oceans.

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Premier Chou En-lai, in the first half of 1965, piled up points for the title of Traveler of the Year. But chances are he accomplished more harm than good for Red China's cause.

Apparently his mission was to strengthen a silken web Peking is trying to spin around Asian and African nationalism in the name of world revolution. But Red China tried to go too far too fast. The backfire handed Peking policy a severe setback, at least in Africa.

Chou has been on the road most of the time since early spring in Africa and Asia, promoting a world revolution policy and contesting stubbornly with the Russians for influence. It was a rugged pace for a man showing his 66 years and the wear and tear of long-distance, airborne diplomacy.

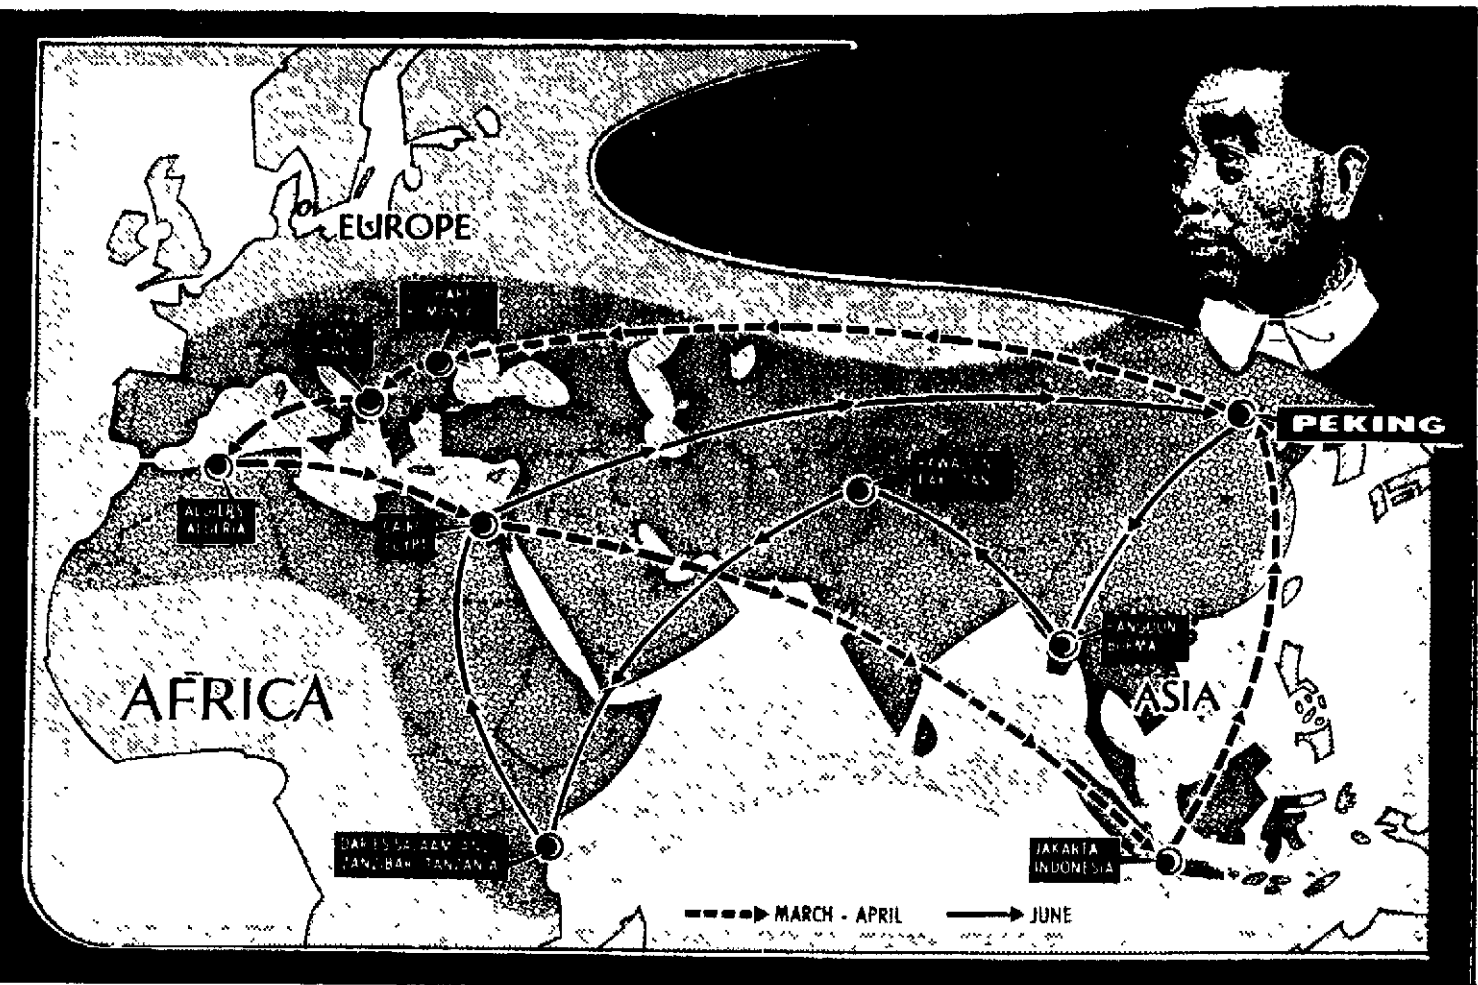

THEN BEN BELLA FELL

The premier was to wind up his journey in Algiers June 26 for the opening of an Asian-African conference. He didn't get there. He was in Egypt in mid-June when Algerian President Ahmed Ben Bella was toppled.

Despite the obvious reluctance of other Asian-African leaders to go on with the conference, Chou desperately tried to prevent its postponement. A postponement, he insisted, would be a victory for "imperialist sabotage." However, the conference was postponed to Nov. 5.

Now the Chou line shifted 180 degrees: the "Chinese people fully supported" the postponement. Already in Algiers, Chou's foreign minister, Chen Yi, even hailed the postponement as "a setback to the imperialists" — the same ones who allegedly had been engineering postponement as an instrument of sabotage.

The flipflop was only one of the difficulties of Chou's 1965 pilgrimages, which began in March with a trip to Romania for the funeral of Communist Leader George Gheorghiu-Dej. From there Chou detoured to Albania, Red China's European satellite, and then to Algeria for pre-conference missionary work.

Chou went on to Cairo and then to Indonesia, all in the interests of furthering the Chinese line for the Asian-African conference which was not to come off. He was doing his best, apparently, to insure that the Russians would have no active part in the conference.

Chou went home, and then, early in June, took off again to do pre-conference spade work. He began his trip in Burma, where he would have little to fear in the way of resistance, and in Pakistan. In Rawalpindi, he evidently tried to persuade President Mohamed Ayub Khan to join an anti-U.S. campaign on the Viet Nam issue, possibly dangling a prospect of support against India for Pakistan. Apparently the Pakistani president did not buy the package.

BOOMERANG IN AFRICA

Chou went on to Africa—and there the boomerang must have hurt the most. He arrived in Tanzania early in June and publicly proclaimed that "an exceedingly favorable situation for revolution prevails today not only in Africa but in Asia and Latin America."

This was a mistake. New governments in Africa may still resent the former colonial powers, but they, themselves, would be the targets of any future revolutions.

Although Tanzania serves almost as a base for Red Chinese subversion and arms traffic in Africa, President Julius Nyerere tartly remarked that "from no quarter shall we accept direction or neo-colonialism and at no times shall we lower our guard against subversion of our government or our people." Chou failed to persuade Nyerere to join in a statement blasting the United States.

The echo was loud from neighboring Kenya. In Parliament, clearly speaking for Premier Jomo Kenyatta, a powerful African figure, Finance Minister James Gichuru declared:

"The other day Chou En-lai, who has no shame, said the whole of Africa is ready for revolution. But against whom, I must ask. The only thing China knows is to send arms under disguise through our country. There are Chinese agencies in this country and the time has come for us to challenge them." Sometimes I wonder if we should not move our embassy in Peking to somewhere else."

NASSER ON TIGHTROPE

Chou went on to the United Arab Republic to wait for the Algiers conference to open. There he snubbed and was snubbed by Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri and saw Nasser walk a tightrope between them. He apparently accomplished little in Cairo. Evidently Nasser showed no intention of divorcing himself from Red China's political foes—India or the Soviet Union—though the Egyptian President seemed content enough to let Moscow and Peking contest for his affections.

The Red Chinese have been at a disadvantage in some respects in the contest with Moscow. The Russians have more to offer and more money to lend. The Chinese apparently decided on the less expensive methods—buying African ministers, smuggling arms, infiltrating institutions and stirring up non-whites against whites.

But Chou's performance in Tanzania had dramatic impact in much of Africa. It was as if, for many of its leaders, the curtain suddenly had been drawn aside to reveal the whole Red Chinese strategy—and they didn't like it.

Caucus System Has Eliminated Meaningful Legislative Debate

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — In contemplating the consequences of the enthronement of King Caucus in the Wisconsin Legislature, the gallery observer will add to the list the virtual elimination of meaningful debate.

Wyngaard

So regularly and thoroughly are the major issues threshed out in the caucuses of both parties in both houses, that there is neither the occasion or the appetite for serious forensic effort on the floor by bill authors, committee chairmen, or individual legislators with a special interest in subjects of concern to their constituents.

The "debate" in reality becomes an effort by a partisan on one side of the chamber to herkie an opponent on the other side. Both know that the effort is quite futile with respect to changing votes, but both recognize that there is a faint chance that a paragraph or two may get into one of the newspapers on a day when legislative dispatches are otherwise arid. Sometimes, in fact, a measure of considerable import will be dispatched in one way or another without more than a few words being uttered by anybody. The galleries, the press rows, and others listening in without benefit of caucus discussions must draw their own conclusions about the importance of the issue involved.

OTHER CASUALTIES

Other costs of the gradual but deliberate transfer of deliberation from the floor to the privacy of the caucus room have been commented upon in these reports. They include an invitation to indolence of the average representative who quickly learns that it is not really necessary for him to spend the hours reading and studying bills that he had imagined would be his duty when he got to Madison. Every bill sent to the calendar will be carefully explained to him in the comfort of privacy, where he can ask as many questions as he wants without risk of embarrassment, and where he can reach his little understandings with colleagues without danger of public observation.

There is a visible demotion of the importance, the function and the responsibility of the chosen floorleaders under the caucus rule. They have degenerated into signal callers, reflecting consensus arrived at off the floor, and their "leadership" is nominal. Habitually today, as against the practices of earlier times, the "leader" will reply, when asked for a position, that he will "take it up with my caucus." Perhaps worse, in the long view of the legislative process, is the denigration of the standing committee function of review and recommendation and the downgrading of the duty and responsibility of the committee chairman on the floor.

DEBATE LOSS

There remain a few — perhaps a dozen — members of the legislature who give their colleagues the courtesy of reasonable preparation before they begin to speak on the floor of the Senate or the Assembly.

For the most part, however, what passes for "debate" is a mixture of rambling and disjointed extemporaneous talk of men who have no real skills in public speaking and harangues intended to annoy rivals or to stir to wakefulness an often sleepy reporters' section.

It may be that the flavor of the old-time arguments is retained within the locked caucus chambers. The press galleries cannot tell. The public will never know. All that is

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for July 22, 1865.

The sale of the Fox River Improvement Company which was to have taken place on the 15th inst., has been adjourned until Sept. 13th.

This will occasion much disappointment among people of the State. It was hoped that matters would be so settled that the assets of the Improvement Company, together with the improvement itself, would be sold, the company reorganized, the State indebtedness paid, and the work completed at once.

When the time of sale arrived, parties came forward and gave notice and set up claims to a large amount, which they insisted should be treated as prior liens to all others.

The New York bondholders came prepared to purchase the improvement, to pay the indebtedness, expense and construction accounts, and furnish the means necessary to complete the work. This amount, as previously stated, was $425,000.

They were unwilling, however, to pay that sum and run the risk of having also to pay unliquidated claims which might be trumped up. We also understand that a Buffalo company also wished to purchase the public works consisting of the river improvement, but were debarred by the terms of the decree and the claims just alluded to.

The Trustees plan to keep the works in good repair until the sale is effected.

Figures Show Poverty Has Decreased

From Exchanges

The boys in Washington should put their heads together occasionally before putting out statistics. Their stories should jibe.

With the administration talking about helping families earning less than $3,000 a year, you'd think the situation is getting worse.

It isn't. Matter of fact, it sort of looks as if those poor families are doing something to help themselves. Statistics show it. The U.S. Department of Commerce has just issued a survey showing that last year 8.4 million families earned less than $3,000, down from 8.9 million the previous year. This is out of a total of 27.8 million families.

Further, the statistics show that over the past 10 years the percentage of American families with incomes below $3,000 has dropped from 31 in 1954 to 18 last year.

If the Department of Commerce continues to issue statistics that conflict with the goals of the Great Society, some of the statisticians may find themselves in the less than $3,000 per year income bracket.

Inexperienced Golfers Face Handicap at Reid

we played the proper fees. We lay no claims to being experts at the game, since we are only able to play a few times each year.

We are well aware of the courtesy expected from "slow" players. On No. 2 tee, a foursome of men asked if

Teammates of Brown Greet Him at Camp

Fullback 'More Eager Than Ever' To Play Football

HIRAM, Ohio (AP)—All-pro fullback Jim Brown, cleared by a jury of assault and battery charges brought by an 18-year-old girl, was in training camp with the Cleveland Browns today, "more eager than ever" to play football.

Other members of the National Football League champion Browns, who have been working out here for more than a week, greeted the big fullback when he arrived Friday night several hours after a Cleveland Municipal Court jury returned a verdict of innocent.

Miss Brenda Ayres had accused Brown of slapping her in his east side Cleveland motel room, playing her with whisky and forcing her into sexual relations.

Brown testified on the witness stand that there was no truth whatever to the charges, telling the jury Miss Ayres came to his motel room uninvited the night of June 19 and refused to leave.

Boros Within Four Strokes of Golf Test Lead

Dave Hill Paces Insurance City Open, Nine Under Par

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—There's no longer any doubt about it. The crowds that have been coming to the Insurance City Open golf tournament want Connecticut's Julius Boros to win and end 13 years of frustration for him and them.

It's been quite a romance between the 45-year-old Boros and the Boros Brigade, which once again hopes that this is the year.

Probably nobody has wanted to win the 72-hole, $70,000 ICO, which passed the halfway mark Friday, more than big Jay, the home state's greatest contribution to the sport.

Four Strokes What has the Boros rooters excited is that he has moved within four strokes of the leader and is in top form.

The sentimental favorite shot a five-under-par 66 Friday, equalled by only two others, for a 36-hole total of 137. He did it in typical Boros fashion, with his classic swing, so coordinated that it makes the game look very easy.

The leader is Dave Hill, whose 66, preceded by a first round 67, gives him a nine-under-par 133.

"Funny Round" The 28-year-old Hill, from Jackson, Mich., called it "a funny round," an apt description. It included six birdies, an eagle and three bogeys — a real scramble.

The eagle came on the 497-yard par 5 14th. Hill's drive split the middle and his No. 4 iron hit the edge of the green, from where he canned a 65-footer.

Dave Marr, with successive 67s, was one stroke behind Hill. Bob Goaly, the first day leader, was two shots off the pace at the 6,568-yard, par-71 Wethersfield Country Club course.

Collar's Bar downed Larry's Country Club, 10-7, this week, to take over sole possession of first place in the Hortonville Recreation Department softball league. Collar's scored five runs in the top of the seventh for the victory, with Mick Collar getting the win. Dale Waushesock was the losing pitcher.

In other league action, Foley's downed the Bowling Alley, 9-3, behind winning hurler Frank Nelson and Don Schultz, who hit two home runs.

Of the 48,000 seats in the big dome, 22,000 already have been gobbled up.

McVea, the Negro schoolboy star who chose Houston largely because he could play under the dome in favorable weather, is ready to make his varsity debut.

He made freshman football at Houston a paying proposition — the Houston-Air Force Academy game drew 5,000, who watched him run 55 and 61 yards for touchdowns. A game with the North Texas State freshmen pulled 4,800 into a park built to seat 2,500.

Gary Player Has Big Lead

Heads National Challenge Tourney After 8-Under Card

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Open champion Gary Player took a commanding 10-stroke lead into the third round of the $50,000 National Challenge Golf Match today.

Player shot an eight-under-par 63 Friday for 36-hole total of 132. Amateur Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., was second with 142, followed by Arnold Palmer and U.S. Amateur champion Bill Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., at 143.

Masters champion Jack Nicklaus, who admitted he was tired after a solid week of exhibitions, was fifth in the six-man field at 148 after a 76. Friday. Dale Morey of High Point, N.C., the other amateur, also shot 76 for a 150 total.

The 72-hole tournament ends Sunday.

"I don't think I've ever played better than I have these last two days," Player said after posting his 63 which broke the course record by two strokes.

Both Nicklaus and Palmer seemed almost ready to concede the $20,000 first prize to Player.

"I had a chance to break 60 today," Player said after coming off the 6,834-yard par 35-36-71 Lakewood Country Club course. "I missed two putts of less than four feet on the front nine and a 12-footer on the 10th."

He also hit a 25-foot eagle putt on the 17th dead in line with the cup, but it stopped a foot short.

But he didn't miss many putts. He made six birdies and an eagle as he played an almost flawless round.

Palmer seemed slightly puzzled by his performance in shooting consecutive rounds of 71 and 72.

Conflicting testimony came from a friend, Miss Paula White, who said she saw Miss Ayres step out of a bathtub 12 hours after the alleged beating and saw no marks on her body.

Miss White also testified that Brenda talked to her June 21 about the possibility of getting money from Brown. Miss Ayres denied talking to Miss White that day.

Roosevelt of Appleton and Menasha South were to clash at 3 p.m. today at Linwood Park for the championship of the area Little League Tournament.

In Friday's games, Menasha South scored a 6-1 win over McKinley as John Gilbert hurled a 4-hitter for the winners.

In the other game, Roosevelt stopped Menasha North by a 9-4 margin.

Gilbert struck out five batters and home runs were hit by Gilbert, a grand slam in the fifth inning and Gary Ruesch. Don Werner, the losing hurler, had nine strikeouts.

Don Bodway socked a grand slam homer for Roosevelt in the sixth inning to lead the win over Menasha North. Jim Porlier was the winning pitcher and Mike Larson took the loss.

N.J., and the hostess, Barbara Ann Creske, 23, a former model from Scranton, Pa., went back into the flaming plane to make certain everyone was out.

An ambulance driver said Miss Creske, her hair afire, refused all help, "until we get all these people out."

She suffered severe burns and shock.

All the passengers were taken to area hospitals, where officials said most were not seriously hurt. Many continued their trip after a checkup at the hospital.

The plane, Flight 604, originated in Pittsburgh and stopped in Dubois and Phillipsburg before landing at Williamsport en route to Wilkes-Barre-Scranton and Newark, N.J.

After taking off pilot Lauber radioed he was having engine trouble and was turning back.

Lauber feathered the smoking engine and tried unsuccessfully to gain altitude before coming down five miles east of the airport.

"Engine Conked Out" "The starboard engine conked out," passenger Brody said. "We tried to head back to Williamsport, but I guess we didn't have enough altitude. The left-hand door and emergency exit were thrown open by the crash. The whole right side of the plane was in flames at the point of impact."

The airport is surrounded on three sides by mountains. Williamsport, a city of about 41,500, is in the central part of the state, about 90 miles from the state capital at Harrisburg.

were shot Friday night outside Ryan's villa.

Ryan, a former FBI agent, directed about 100 Americans giving police training to the South Vietnamese. Ryan had served 10 years in Southeast Asia and had returned a day before the shooting from Washington consultations.

Vietnamese sources said Mrs. Hai was the wife of a Vietnamese air force officer and the mother of four children. Friends said she and the suspect had been close friends.

Police sources said the slaying apparently was motivated by a desire for personal revenge.

Kimball's old haunts were searched and his friends questioned as Vietnamese police and American security men attempted to trace the suspect. The U.S. Embassy also was investigating.

The suspect's motorcycle was found in a quarter between downtown Saigon and the Chinese part of the capital.

A Vietnamese student, Miss Chan Thi Lai, 16, told a newsman that Mrs. Hai and Kimball were friends of her mother and had been frequent visitors to her home. They had been there Friday night she said, and left about 9 p.m.

Police said Ryan was shot in the chest and head as he stepped from his car in front of his home at about 11 p.m. A doctor said that either shot would have been fatal.

Mrs. Hai, investigators said, apparently was in Ryan's car and was shot as she tried to run away.

Ryan is survived by his widow and two children, none of whom is in Saigon.

In addition to his aid job, Ryan was personal adviser to Col. Pham Van Lieu, chief of the Vietnamese national police service. As such, he was one of the ranking U.S. advisers in South Viet Nam.

Airport Committee Told of Need for Runway Overlay

600-Foot Long Section Rough For Jet Landings, Group Told

OSHKOSH — The need for a possible overlay on a 600-foot section of the east-west runway was pointed out to the aviation committee of the county board Friday night by airport manager Steve Wittman.

Wittman said he had been receiving complaints about the roughness of the section between the north-south runway and the northeast-southwest diagonal runway. The roughness is mostly noticeable to jet planes rather than to the DC-3 and Convair planes, he said.

He estimated that the cost for a two-inch blacktop overlay could run about $4,000 but he did not know if the entire 600-foot section needed the overlay to smooth out the roughness.

Wittman said he had been attempting to have some levels taken to determine the amount of roughness on the runway. The airport manager said he also had discussed with the state aeronautics commission and with James Popp, FAA regional engineer, the status of the runway marking which is part of the east-west runway extension project. He said he had been told that the county might be able to do the runway marking cheaper than if it were to be done by a contract through the FAA. How soon the FAA could get at such a project also was doubtful.

The committee advised Wittman to get letters in writing from the state and FAA offices also a center strip is to be painted on the major runways. The committee plans to request the county board at the Aug. 17 meeting for permission to use unallocated funds in the airport budget for the runway marking.

Erection of a sign on W. 20th Avenue was discussed and the committee decided to invite Richard Thern, chairman of the County Pilots Association to meet with the committee at its next meeting to discuss the type of sign to be erected and the possibility of securing a surplus jet plane from the government for use on the sign.

Wittman advised the committee Winnebago County had been withdrawn from the list of airports to receive approach landing systems (ALS) at this time but still is scheduled for a distance measuring equipment (DME) installation in March of 1967. He said he did not know if the CAB airport dispute was the reason for the removal of the county from those to receive ALS equipment.

The committee also voted to have a seal coat placed over the new blacktopping on the Kimberly-Clark Corp. hangar apron at a cost of up to $300. Members inspected the blacktop work at the beginning of the meeting.

Payment of the bill for $1,300 of Robert Lester, special counsel for the county in the CAP airport hearings was approved by the committee. Part of this cost includes his work in connection with the review of the CAB decision and the hearing before the seventh circuit court of appeals at Chicago.

Driver Finds Going Rough

Event Set for Aug. 1 at Smith Park

Certificates to be Given to Winners In Costume Competition at Festival

MENASHA — Twelve certificates of appreciation, signed by the mayor and city clerk of Menasha, will be awarded to the top winners in a clothing and costume competition to be held in conjunction with the Smith Park Festival, Sunday, Aug. 1.

Winners' names will be signed on the certificate by "Menasha's Finest Penman," Henry Jankowski, and a gift will accompany the award.

Participation is open to anyone living in the Twin City area. Registration will be taken at the park from 1 to 3 p.m., and judging will take place from 4 to 4:30 p.m.

Judges are Mrs. John H. Wilterding, former president of the Menasha Historical Society; Mrs. Hugh Roberts, of the Neenah Historical Society; Mrs. William B. Hildebrand, and Mrs. James Auer, who is chairman of the event.

Designed Sets
Mrs. Auer has earned her masters (M.S.) in speech and theater at the University of Wisconsin. Locally she has designed costumes and sets for the Attic Theatre and supervised the costumes for several Riverside Players Productions. In 1964 she designed and executed costumes for the University of Wisconsin's traveling production of the original musical, "Hodag!"

Judging of period costumes will be separate from judging of period clothing actually made and worn in the 19th century. Mrs. Auer pointed out. Adult and children's divisions are planned in each category.

Latter Half
Costumes, for purposes of the competition, are defined as any recently-made reproduction of clothing worn in another period of history. Clothing is defined as garments produced and worn in another period of history. This division will cover those persons who wear clothing which actually belonged to a person living in the 19th century.

$100,000 Addition to Hortonville Fabricating Firm Will Triple Space

New Site on Black Otter Lake Will Give Melray Room to Expand

HORTONVILLE — A $100,000 addition being constructed by Melray Inc. on the eastern edge of the village will triple the present space of the fabricating firm.

The addition to the corporation specializing in truck bodies and custom steel work will be 80 by 200 feet, according to Raymond Richards, president.

A 30 by 40 foot office is not included in the plants size. The total construction will cover 17,200 square feet of a three-acre site that runs from U. S. 45 to Black Otter Lake.

Since 1950 the giant building is being constructed of steel. Melray began operation in Hortonville in 1950.

Currently there are 15 employees at the plant located behind the post office in the middle of the Hortonville business district. Richards said there is no room for expansion at the present site and added room is a necessity.

The firm has turned out fire truck bodies, a specialty, for places in Viet Nam, Arabia, Canada, Spain, Israel and Trinidad, West Indies.

Richards plans on moving the equipment to the new location without disturbing his production. He says he has two of every machine and will move one series into the new location and then transfer the work force.

Indian Medicine Show Suffers From Heap Big Potion—Rain

MENASHA — Heap big show suffered from anger of gods! Ugh.

So goes the comment of phony Indian John Hidde at the Prospector Days Medicine show, which held only two of its planned three shows Friday night. The winds swiftly shifted, and by the appearance of ominous squall lines and black clouds behind the roof of the medicine show wagon, heap big show was ending with the zippy notes of Banjo Jo Gazecki's version of "Twelfth Street Rag".

At the first two shows the wizard, alias James Auer, presented the crowd with something to think about when he baffled onlookers with fancy mind reading and sleight of hand.

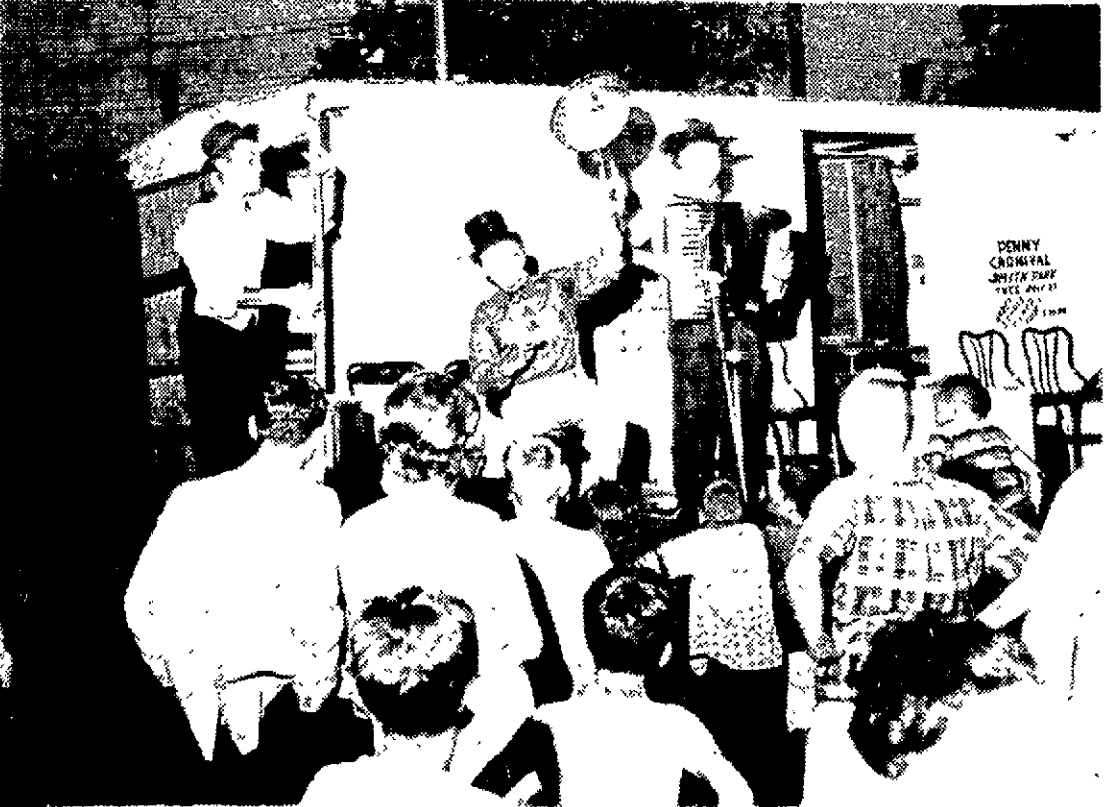

John Hidde fanned his hand at all those thinking he was spoofing when he turned out gaily painted and half clad as an Indian. When the rains belted the Bank of Menasha parking lot, scene of the action, bad medicine, but very good gift Chief Running Paint (as he was) thereby dubbed) dismissed the crowd with a disgusted "Ugh!"

Throughout the first two performances, at 6 and 7 p.m., the famed man of the stage, Banjo Jo Gazecki put tongue in cheek, twirled his machine about and settled down to some strumming banjo music. His crazy good humored jokes roused smiles and giggles on faces of young and old.

Throughout the performance of Banjo Jo, his two accompanists on accordion and homemade garbage can string bass provided spectators with hoots, hollars and a tap dance routine for the spiritual uplift of spectators.

Chief Running Paint acted as master of ceremonies for the successful shows which drew large crowds. His other duty, as medicine pusher, was to distribute the amber and jade bottles of dubious content to spectators. Unlike a real clip show held out west in days gone by, the bottles contained not bad medicine, but very good gift certificates for Menasha stores.

"Heap Big Show Stuffer from anger of gods! Ugh." Those were the words of Medicine Joe the Indian salesman at the Menasha Medicine show that never really got started Friday night in downtown

Menasha. Heavy rains forced cancellation of the act in the downtown area Prospector Days celebration. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Ozark Will Serve Post At Milwaukee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board authorized Ozark Air Lines today to provide one-stop service between St. Louis and Milwaukee by way of Davenport, Iowa-Moline, Ill.

The board said that effective immediately, for a two-year experimental period, Ozark may limit its service at Rockford, Ill., on the St. Louis-Milwaukee route to one round trip a day.

The CAB said the one-stop service should improve Ozark's earnings by $44,000 annually, and therefore the new service must be operated without subsidy.

The new service, the board said, will enable Ozark to offer schedules 18 minutes faster than the best available interline connecting services at Chicago now provided between St. Louis and Milwaukee.

The fare also will be about $3 less than the lowest connecting fare, the board said.

Any diversion of traffic from North Central Airlines would be outweighed by public benefits resulting from the improved service, the CAB said.

Congress of Cities to Air Press-Politicians Problem

Municipal Government Reporting Topic for First Time at Conclave

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

DETROIT, MICH. — City hall reporters and public officials from across the nation will roll up their shirtsleeves Sunday and engage in a frank, no-holds-barred discussion of municipal government reporting.

The confrontation between press and politicians has been given billing as one of the intriguing sessions of the 1965 Congress of Cities being held here through next Wednesday.

Mayor Henry W. Maier of Milwaukee, president of the 2,000-member National League of Cities, says the discussion on "City Hall and the Press" will be the first in the 42-year history of the congress.

Several timely topics will be aired, including the gripes city officials have against reporters and editors, and visa versa.

The reporters and public officials will explore whether there are misunderstandings on both sides about the problems each faces in trying to do a job. An attempt will also be made to define a line in press releases as to where information stops and propaganda starts.

Mayors of various cities — both large and small — will tell how they treat the members of the press.

How to Interpret
"How can newsmen and officials put 'hate groups' into proper perspective?" will be another area to be explored.

"The problems and the needs of the cities are great, but there is none greater than public understanding," says Patrick Healy, Washington, executive director of the National League of Cities.

"Politicians, consultants, critics, civic leaders, editors, broadcasters, telecasters — all have important roles to play in translating urban problems of growth, change and decay in understandable terms and choices," Healy added.

As a result, he said, many questions of city hall-press relationships are raised.

Changing Beat
They are expected to be covered when newsmen and politicians discuss how the city hall beat has changed with the changing city.

An assessment will also be made as to whether today's press is doing enough interpretive urban reporting, and whether reporters are equipped to do the job.

After the last round, a report will be prepared to include all the viewpoints and ideas.

"While clashes of opinion are sure to arise, we feel that — more than inspiring controversy — this meeting will lay the groundwork for more effective communication in the future between city government and its citizens," Healy opined.

Mayors Clarence Mitchell of Appleton and Donald A. Tilleman of Green Bay are among the Wisconsin delegation attending the five-day congress.

Mitchell runs his office with an "open door" policy for newsmen, giving them access to his daily mail and municipal events, such as appointments. He holds a briefing session prior to making official announcements.

He usually meets with reporters about 10 a.m. to answer questions. When the mayor has conferences in his office, or meetings in other parts of city hall, they are open to the press.

Plan Joint Talks on New Universities

CAP Head Says County Funds Much Needed

$5,600 to be Used For Equipment, New Study Materials

Funds from Outagamie County expected soon by the Fox Cities squadron of the Civil Air Patrol are "desperately needed," Commander Erwin Roberts said today.

The County Board of Supervisors allocated $5,600 of its budget this year for the CAP squadron, but had not released the money pending passage of a bill permitting such allocations.

The bill, signed by Gov. Warren Knowles Thursday, permits Wisconsin counties to provide funds or donate property and equipment to Civil Air Patrols.

Roberts said funds have been coming out of "individual pockets" in past months for CAP activity. He added the new funds would give the patrol new equipment and "200 per cent more flexibility and increased dependability."

Fund Earmarked
The funds will be spent on maintaining radio equipment — including updating some of the instruments — and vehicles and buying training equipment, such as textbooks for new cadets.

The squadron will be able to coordinate activities better with city and county Civil Defense, county sheriff's department and city police, Roberts said.

The group currently has 10 emergency vehicles. A group of such radio-equipped vehicles cost as much as equipping one police car, Roberts said.

In the past three months the CAP has assisted at seven accidents, spotted one tornado, and helped at the new Outagamie County Airport.

Senate-Assembly Conference Will Seek Compromise on State Schools in Northeast, Southeast

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A joint senate-assembly conference committee will probably meet here Tuesday to attempt to resolve a dispute about details in proposed legislation to establish two new state universities in northeastern and southeastern Wisconsin.

Both houses have shown by

Tax Deadline Is On July 31

Real Estate Owners Can Take Advantage Of Special Hours

The deadline for payment of real estate taxes is July 31, City Treas. Ray Feuerstein announced today. To accommodate taxpayers, special hours will be in effect Friday and Saturday.

On Friday the treasurer's office will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. On Saturday it will be open from 9 a.m. to noon. Ordinarily the office is closed on Saturday. During the rest of the week regular office hours will be observed, from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4 p.m.

The final payment in the partial payment plan is due by noon Saturday. Feuerstein reported that collections have been good with quite a few of the final payments already in ahead of the deadline.

Any taxes unpaid by Saturday noon will be turned over to the county treasurer as delinquent.

top-heavy votes that they favor the idea of additional decentralization of higher educational opportunity, but the assembly has preferred to hand the new units over to the University of Wisconsin at Madison, and the senate has leaned toward the choice of the board of regents of state colleges while holding that the legislature needs the advice of the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education on the matter.

Not Limited
While administrative method is the primary problem in the enactment of the legislation, the conference committee is not limited in its jurisdiction and could rewrite the proposal in its entirety if it chose to do so.

There has been some speculation, for example, that Sen. Taylor Benson of Racine County, who has been critical of the language in the bill authorizing "third or third and fourth year" instruction above the freshman-sophomore level of instruction now provided by the University of Wisconsin in both districts, may insist upon a clearly written mandate for a four-year school. He has called the present proposal one that can lead to an "educational monstrosity."

There also is some concern that the committee may rewrite the provisions for a site selection decision by a committee of state officials. Sponsors of the bills thus far have successfully avoided mention of the competition among various communities in both regions for the location of the schools, fearing that it would be harmful to the main issue of securing legislative authorization for the institutions.

Mrs. Klitzke told Appleton police she was pulling out of a parking stall in the 200 block of West Washington St. at 3:15 when the accelerator pedal of her car stuck or broke.

She was unable to stop the vehicle, which hit the Wisconsin Telephone Co. building.

Mrs. Klitzke was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital, treated for cuts on her face and the back of her head, and released.
